Spies: What you don't know can't hurt you

The CIA is, or was, good at keeping secrets. It has made a career of making secrets, passing secrets and, some say, killing to keep the secrets secret. That's the trouble — what some people are saying.

The CIA also made a career of making enemies and, some say, of killing to keep them enemies. The trouble is that some of the enemies are not dead.

In fact, there's a full week of anti-CIA activities going on in Havana. Among the most enthusiastic participants are three former CIA agents. The festivities began with fireworks in a sports stadium Friday, and the plans are to form a worldwide network of informants on CIA activities. They already are putting out a journal in the U.S. called Covert Action Information Bulletin.

All of which is no secret to the CIA.
