Estimating Soviet Military Intentions and Capabilities
Estimating Soviet Military Intentions and Capabilities

Author’s Comments: Raymond Garthoff

The documents in this volume dealing with CIA’s analysis of military affairs during the Cold War were selected with several considerations in mind. First, they provide illustrative examples of analyses of Soviet intentions and military doctrine, as well as of military forces and capabilities. Second, they include materials on strategic forces and theater or general purpose forces for nuclear and non-nuclear warfare. For reasons of space, however, some subjects regrettably are not covered, such as Soviet naval forces and civil defense. Third, they provide a balance, including CIA Directorate of Intelligence analyses on current Soviet military affairs (and “post-mortems” on past analyses and estimates), as well as CIA-drafted National Intelligence Estimates forecasting future developments.

Finally, the documents selected highlight new materials, omitting many relevant documents released earlier and published in previous collections. As a result, less attention is given to the 1960s and 1970s, and to the early period of concern over possible Soviet initiation of war in the late 1940s and early 1950s, the “missile gap” of the late 1950s, the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, the “Team B” competitive analysis on strategic estimates in the late 1970s, and the end game of the Cold War in the late 1980s.
