   1. By Field: None

   2. By Headquarters:

      (a) Radio Tapes (new series) No. 01, 02, 03, 04 were prepared and submitted for transmission via Radio PYREX. Additional tapes were prepared in order to increase the number of AERODYNAMIC Tapes to 8 per month starting with December. Special tapes for Ukrainian Christmas (7 January) and Ukrainian Independence Day (22 January) were also prepared. PP materials for the preparation of Ukrainian broadcasts at Radio NACIONAL were also prepared and submitted during this period.

      (b) The "Information Bulletin" No. 10 – November issue, was completed and distributed. Approximately 6000 copies of the bulletin are mailed to different addresses in the Ukrainian SSR each month from the United States, Canada, Austrialia, Great Britain, Germany and France.

d. SECURITY FACTORS: No New Information

f. NEW ASSETS: In recent months, Project AERODYNAMIC through its Ukrainian emigre group AECASSOWARY 1, has begun the exploitation of a new means of access to the project target area, the Ukrainian SSR. Since late 1955, the liberalization of the Polish political situation towards the Ukrainian minority in Poland (numbering approximately 350,000 people) has enabled the Ukrainians there to establish numerous contacts with their countrymen both in the Ukrainian SSR and in the emigration in the West. Thus the Ukrainian minority in Poland now serves as a bridge for PP access to the Ukrainian SSR.

      Initial AECASSOWARY-1 action began with the sending of their newspapers to Ukrainians in Poland. Gradually through correspondence, the group established further contacts and learned that possibilities existed for relaying literature to the Ukrainian SSR. A visit to Poland by a West German Ukrainian professor in late 1956 and again in Sept-Oct 1957 revealed the fact that much of the scholarly material on Ukrainian topics in Polish universities and libraries was frequently utilized by visiting students, professors, and scholars from the Ukrainian SSR. At the same time, information about the West, as well as publications and books, was being relayed to the Ukrainian SSR in the following ways:

      (1) Ukrainians from Poland visiting relatives in Soviet Ukraine

(2) Personal correspondence between Ukrainians of the two countries

(3) Mailing of newspapers and other printed matter to the Ukrainian SSR from Poland

(4) Personal contacts by Polish Ukrainians with visiting Soviet Ukrainian delegations, cultural groups, professors and students

(5) Polish Ukrainian students studying at universities in the Ukrainian SSR

(6) Visits of members of the USSR and Uzbek SSR to Soviet Ukraine in an official capacity

The program of sending literature was gradually expanded and as of 30 November 1957, over 200 volumes had been sent to Poland, of which at least 15 to 20 volumes have been relayed to the Ukrainian SSR. A file of over 150 addresses of institutions and individuals to whom literature can be sent in Poland has been set up. Fairly accurate biographies have also been collected on many of the individuals. A regular correspondence has been set up with over 50 Ukrainians in Poland and arrangements have been made with some of them (both through correspondence and personally) to have them send literature to the Ukrainian SSR.

Approval has been given the AERODYNAMIC group to increase their mailing program in the next few months, including an intensified effort to send as much literature as possible via Poland to the Ukrainian SSR. The literature to be used in this program consists primarily of Ukrainian works which are either banned or unavailable in the Ukrainian SSR, and which have in many cases a definite Ukrainian nationalistic tone.
