MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Telephone call from Vice Admiral Fitzhugh Lee

1. Admiral Fitzhugh Lee, Commandant of the National War College, called me today to say that sometime ago a question arose as to whether or not it would be advantageous to have someone from the Agency assigned to the National War College faculty. He said that he believed this stemmed from a visit by Ambassador Berger to the Agency, and had probably been discussed with Mr. Sherman Kent and [redacted], and that the pros and cons had been kicked around for sometime. Admiral Lee stated that it was his understanding that if such an arrangement were made that the Agency would provide the slot and salary for the officer assigned there.

2. Admiral Lee said that he was neutral in the matter, that he could see advantages and disadvantages, and he just wanted to get my personal views. I told him that this was the first I had heard of the proposal but that I would look into it immediately and be in touch with him. I also told him that if we sent someone over we would certainly take care of his salary and slot and would send a well-qualified officer, but would want to have someone assigned to the faculty only if this were desired by the National War College. He asked that I think it over and let him know sometime in January -- the assignment would not be effective until next July.
