Dear General Taylor:

STAT

I wish to commend [redacted] for outstanding performance of his duties with this Agency.

STAT

[redacted] reported to CIA on 24 March 1955 to assume duties as chief of a new division established to handle guided missiles intelligence--a problem of highest national intelligence priority. This assignment has been one of great difficulty and complexity, requiring superior knowledge of and experience in the basic subject matter. [redacted] has brought to it the highest type of military, personal and intellectual attributes, has displayed exceptional leadership and has gained the well-deserved liking and respect of both his superiors and his subordinates.

STAT

[redacted] duties have required high-level liaison and negotiation not only with the three Services, but also the top echelon of U. S. scientists and industrialists concerned with this subject. He has carried out these relationships in such a competent manner as to reflect great credit on both this Agency and the United States Army.

In view of [redacted] exceptional performance, I recommend that consideration be given to promoting him to the rank of Brigadier General.

Sincerely,

SIGNED

Dear General Taylor:

I am writing to bring to your attention the outstanding performance of one of your officers while on duty with this Agency. [] reported to this Agency on 24 March 1955 to assume duties as chief of a new division which we had established to handle guided missile intelligence—a problem of highest national intelligence priority. This assignment has been one of great difficulty and complexity, requiring superior knowledge of and experience in the basic subject matter. [] has brought to it the highest type of military, personal and intellectual attributes, has displayed exceptional leadership and has gained the well deserved liking and respect of both his superiors and his subordinates. His duties have required high level liaison and negotiation not only with the three Services, but also the top echelon of U. S. scientists and industrialists concerned with this subject. He has carried out these relationships in such a competent manner as to reflect credit on both this Agency and the United States Army.

In view of [] exceptionally fine performance of duty with us, I am taking the liberty of suggesting that you give consideration to the possibility of promoting him to the next higher rank within the near future.

Sincerely,

C. P. Cabell
