DRAFT

Mr. James W. Clark
Chief, International Division
Bureau of the Budget
Washington, D. C. 20503

Dear Jim:

As a result of a request for the release of funds from our Contingency Reserve for Project [redacted] representatives of CIA and NSA have had several recent discussions with your staff about two very important collection systems under development in the two Agencies.

25X1

We have determined that the [redacted] system can be developed by reprogramming and without the use of Reserve funds. We do want you to know, however, that Admiral Taylor and Dr. Tordella have personally consulted extensively and in detail on the two systems and are fully agreed that both short-range and long-range systems of both Agencies should be developed with all possible speed, and we are proceeding accordingly.
