

General Cabell:

Tom Parrott called a short time ago to mention one item which General Taylor will probably bring up as soon as the Special Group convenes tomorrow. General Taylor plans to mention the fact that the President, in speaking to him recently about the physical move to our new building, had stated that he certainly hopes there will be no fanfare or ceremony or ribbon cutting in conjunction therewith. I assured Tom that nothing of this nature was planned, that the only conspicuous part of the move would be the fact that there would be some trucks hauling safes and furnishings to the site and there would of course, over a period of time, be a gradual increase of traffic with our people going to and from their new offices but that certainly no public ceremony of any description was planned. I have also verified this with Red White this afternoon and you can safely give full assurances to General Taylor that this is the case.

Tom also said that he had mentioned to General Taylor that because of the Special USIB meeting, you would only be able to stay for about 15 minutes at the Special Group session and that Dick Bissell would be coming with you and remain for the rest of the meeting. General Taylor said that this was all right and that if you did not care to come at all, this would certainly be OK with him too.
