Dear Hugh:

Clover and I enjoyed so much seeing you both the other evening. It couldn't have been a pleasanter occasion.

I sincerely appreciate what you say in your letter and your suggestion. I am making no plans for post-retirement activities at the moment, but when I have had a chance to settle down, I should be glad to talk over your idea with you. I appreciate the great importance of this work but I am anxious not to get too much involved in too many activities as I have certain writing plans to which I wish to give all my attention after I retire.

Clover joins me in messages to you both.

Sincerely,
