STAT

Dear Bob:

On the 15th of April I wrote you to say that we were carefully reviewing the possibility of employing [redacted] about whom you had written me. I greatly regret to say that we have been unable to find an opening for [redacted]

STAT

[redacted] has indicated that he does not desire to be assigned to Washington and his general experience would appear to qualify him only for an assignment in [redacted] if we were to send him overseas. While his general experience is excellent, it does not meet any of our present requirements for our overseas work. Furthermore, his limited intelligence training and experience would make it very difficult for him to qualify for a senior position with us, and $11,000 is the lowest annual entrance salary which he has indicated that he would be willing to accept.

[redacted] is being informed directly by our Personnel Office of the fact that we do not have a position for him.

STAT

Sincerely,

[redacted signature box]
