STAT

Dear Allen:

This letter will be presented to you by about whom I spoke to you when you were in New York on Sunday.

STAT has filed the usual lengthy applications with your agency but has not yet received any reaction. I am therefore presuming upon your kindness to see whether it would not be possible for you to see him and look his file over. To my way of thinking, he could well be very useful. He is earnest, hard working, intelligent, and certainly anxious to be doing something worth while.

I know him and I know his mother and his step-father who live in Sarasota, Florida. If you could find a place for him, I know that it would gratify an ambition which he cherishes more than probably you and I could realize.

With kindest regards, I am

Yours very sincerely,

Colonel Candler Cobb
Director of Selective Service
350 Fifth Avenue
New York 1, New York

Dear Candler:

STAT [redacted] stopped in to see me this morning.
STAT [redacted] Unfortunately, I was unable to see him myself but [redacted] STAT [redacted], who is working in my office, talked to him.

His application to the agency was filed on 6 March 1951 and there has been insufficient time to determine whether or not his services can be profitably used. I have urged our personnel people to look into his qualifications and to notify [redacted] whether there is a vacancy for him. STAT

With kindest regards,

Sincerely yours,

Allen W. Dulles
