Re: 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company

1. Introduction

The 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company is located in LEBENZ in the "Old 26th Caserne" at UTM 33 UUS 39072Z.

Neighboring Units

In the same barracks is an independent signal communication battalion, the artillery company and an independent military band. The offices of the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company are also located here.

Other units, including the 16th Armored Regiment (formerly 306th RECON) and the 26th Armored Division, are also located in the barracks. The independent signal communication battalion is located in the same building.

2. History and Organization

The 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company was formed in 1945 as the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company. In 1955, it was redesignated as the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company. In 1962, it was redesignated as 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company. In 1965, it was redesignated as 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company.

3. Strengths

The strength of the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company is approximately 300 soldiers. These figures do not include the strength of the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company's attached units.

4. Summary

The 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Company is an essential unit in the 306th Reconnaissance (RECON) Battalion. It provides a wide range of services in support of the battalion's mission.

5. Equipment (See Incl 4)

6. Training

The first training classes began in Nov - Dec 57. Trainees from this first group were former KVP or Wehrmacht members. The next group was to have begun training in Jan 58 and was to have been drawn from university students since these students were still in school, the next classes were eventually begun in May 58. The training program was as follows:

a. Instructors

Former NCOs of the EGA who are presently in the reserve are called in one week prior to the arrival of regular trainees and given the training material to be taught during the regular training course. Theoretically the cadre act as instructors while the reserve officers and NCOs act as assistants. The latter are in most cases more capable than the cadre and do most of the training.

b. Training Classes

These classes are composed entirely of university or technical institute students who are required to take four weeks of training yearly.

Students from the Freiberg Mining Academy were generally assigned to the engineering or chemical platoon.

Assignment was made on the basis of scholastic background to the various arms and services.

Training is divided approximately into about 40% classroom and 60% field training at squad, platoon and company level and it is no more than training in the basic elements of the various arms.

7. Supply

a. Rations

In addition to the food required for daily consumption, a two day reserve ration is constantly maintained. It consists of rice and other grain foods, dried vegetables, canned meat and butter and bread similar to "Knaeckebrot".

Rations were available for the entire regiment, even though a complete, combat-ready regiment could not be organized from presently assigned personnel.

b. Ammunition

Subject regiments maintain two basic loads for each medium tank consisting of 50 round of HE ammunition and five belts of MG ammunition for each MG. Also on hand were three basic loads of small arms ammunition and three basic loads of artillery and mortar ammunition for which Source did not know amounts.

c. POL

One POL tank trailer truck with a combined capacity of 9,000 liters is kept loaded and in reserve at all times.

d. Vehicles and Equipment

Approximately 50% to 60% of all vehicles are normally deadlined because of the lack of POL supplies or spare parts. One H3A trk was deadlined for four months with a broken front axle and a K30 which could not be driven for four weeks for lack of a fuel pump. It is common to see a line up of deadlined vehicles in the motor pool and also common practice to cannibalize these vehicles to keep others in operation. The primary mission of the Motor Veh Off (See Incl. 2) is to travel to factories and other spare parts sources to purchase necessary parts for vehicles.

a. Uniforms

The clothing situation in the 10th Tug Regt is not good; it is better for the cadre personnel than for the trainees. The cadre have the opportunity of exchanging their muddy uniforms; whereas the trainees do not. All personnel have the gray parade uniforms but many uniforms are still issued from dyed stocks of old mostly worn out KPP clothing.

3. Efficiency

Subject regiment cannot be judged on its combat efficiency due to its training regiment status. Judging from the existing morale, little could be expected from the organization were it to be brought up to strength and placed in active status.

a. Officer Personnel

There are roughly three classes of officers in the regiment; those who are capable in spite of or because of their political convictions, those who although potentially capable are officers only for personal advantage and those who are either totally incapable or so disinterested and disgusted that they are practically useless. Among the latter officer, it is common to find many who are incapable of correcting the EC when they occurred.

b. NGO Personnel

The men are completely and tactically capable and, insofar as the handling of their vehicles is concerned and they are interested and satisfied.

c. Discipline and Barracks

Discipline and barrack are basically non-existent in the 10th Tug Regt in effect the officers at NGO ranks and in esprit de corps. Officers fraternize with subordinates and at campfires, the same rate. It is a common occurrence to have no less than 50-60 men in the area after duty hours other than the guards on duty. Only the guards, security and clerical are a daily occurrence; officers are just as drunk as WWII days when the guards did not move off the streets on average of two or three officers were under arrest at any time for or about and that the calls for lower grades were constantly full.

and the following.

1. Uniforms

The uniform is a cause primarily by the lack of

(4) The lack of leadership exists almost universally. The former regimental commander was an extremely weak and faceless individual who permitted the morale to deteriorate. The present commander is apparently little better for, although he makes high sounding speeches at party gatherings and regimental formations, he actually takes no interest in his command. The commander of the medium tank battalion is technically capable but he is known as "the biggest 'house' in his battalion," too preoccupied with his own affairs to concern himself with the welfare of his soldiers. In the company of his Dep Cdr, his Polt Off and CoF, where all drink to excess, the commander has been known to borrow money from his own vehicle driver.

9. Miscellaneous
   a. New T34/85 Tanks
      Subject regiment received 31 x T34/85 tanks in Apr 58 from an unknown source. These tanks were not new but were in rather good condition. They replaced old T 34/76 tanks and SP 76 guns. Source did not know the disposition of the old tanks but stated that the majority of the SP guns were delivered to the SP 76 guns. There was a 70 mm gun, and one 85 mm howitzer mounted on the right side. The two 213 tanks were removed and replaced by one 85 mm howitzer mounted on the right side. b. First Sergeant Duties the duties of the First Sergeant (Immedienstleiter) as follows:
   (1) Personal preparation of the morning report.
   (2) Supervision of the arms room, for which he is personally responsible.
   (3) Supervision of the police of the company area.
   (4) Issue of clothing and equipment and supervision of the Co supply room.
   (5) Preparation and maintenance of guard and duty rosters. There is no manual governing these items; therefore the 1st Sgt usually sets up his own system of company records. Incl 5 shows examples of the regimental guard order and the company records.
   (6) Preparation of the monthly payroll and the payment of enlisted personnel.
   Incl 6 shows a sample payroll (Gehaltsliste). This is a pre-printed form in which the 1st Sgt enters the names of all company EM alphabetically, totals and checks the amounts to be paid and, accompanied by the Co Cdr, he carries it to the regimental finance office where the payroll is received. The 1st Sgt then pays EM under the supervision of the Co Cdr or other officer.
   (7) In combat the 1st Sgt would be concerned chiefly with preparation of strength reports, supervision of troop feeding and supply of ammunition, clothing and other items.

   The 1st Sgt has no company clerk and no typewriter; consequently he must accomplish all such administrative work alone and by hand.

c. New Equipment
   Incl 4 mentions three Molotov vehicles equipped with infra-red night driving devices and one ZIS half-truck radar trk. The three Molotov vehicles are equipped with radio and are employed both as command's communication trucks and in fire control communication roles. They were received now from an unknown Soviet unit.

The half-track radar vehicle was received now from an unknown Soviet unit in May 58.

The communication vehicles, mentioned above, as well as one 14.7 mm MG vehicle employed for AA defense in the medium tank battalion, are equipped with infra-red night driving lights but Source could give no information on their operational details.

Subject regiment was a

Quad unit until Nov 57, when it was organized as a reserve training regt. Source believed it was integrated into the 863 in mid summer 56. It had no permanent CO at that time but was under command of the Deputy General; present CO was named directly from civil life, after having been sent to the Staff and Command School, DRZ-DEN, from which he emerged as a capt. He was promoted to Maj on 6 Oct 57.

Legend

Duties run from 1700 hours to 1700 hours; therefore the double entries on same dates.

Columns are headed in German as follows:

O.V.S. (Offizier von Standort) is the DO or Field CO who is responsible for order in the town.

O.P. (Operative Diensthabendender) is the CO within the caserne.

O.V.F (Offizier von KFZ Park) is an officer detailed for 24 hour duty in the motor pool. He generally turns this duty over to the CO at 2200 hours.

K.D.F. (Kontroll Durchlass Posten) is usually a sergeant who is placed on duty at the main gate.

H.W. (Hauptwache) is the guard detail within the caserne.

F.W. (Feuerwache) is the fire guard detail within the caserne. Streife is the term applied to patrols within the city.

V.K. (Verkehrskontrolle) is the traffic control detail.

O.W.K. (Offizier Von der Kueche) is an officer detailed to supervise the kitchen and mess. He oversees the issue of rations for the following day, has the responsibility for rations supplies, ensures that the preparation of meals follow the menu, that rations are not wasted or stolen, and that meals are prepared on time. Generally done by lst Sgt except for holidays.

REGT. ORDER G and Co. Guard and Duty Roster (C)

LEGEND

Where the Regt. Guard Order is typed, the Co. Guard and Duty Roster is made up by hand by the 1st Sgt. There is no manual which prescribes its makeup but the sample shown here is common. It is executed at least 24 hours prior to the date of the first duty according to the Regt. Guard Order which is posted on the company bulletin board, and each person concerned is required to sign opposite his name under "Remarks".

The shaded squares in the date line are so indicated to denote weekends and holidays only (since in the period from the month of May, in which a number of holidays occur, 2 days is an excellent example of the amount of duty required).

No person is exempt from duty except personnel assigned to the staff, and the sequence of duty is very normal; even in cases of leave. When a man has duty but must be away for any reason, he exchanges his duty with the next man on the list and adjusts when he returns. Long periods of leave must be planned for at least four weeks in advance, in order that the 1st Sgt may set up the duty roster accordingly.

As indicated on page 1, the various assignments are entered in colored pencil according to a legend which the 1st Sgt makes up; colors are not standard but will vary with different organizations.

In addition to this form, the 1st Sgt is also required to make up the sentry roster which assigns sentries by name to specified posts. Sentries on the main gate must be at least sergeants when the unit is large enough to have them available; when not corporals are assigned.
