1. Charter for Critical Collection Problems
Committee

(IAC-D-111/4, 24 February)

a. General Samford and General Erskine, representing NSA and the Department of Defense respectively, were present during the discussion of this item. Action taken was therefore considered a joint IAC-USCIB action.

b. After an exchange of views on the proposed charter for a Critical Collection Problems Committee (CCPC) the draft charter was approved, as amended. With respect to a question raised by General Erskine in discussing paragraph 1 a, the Chairman emphasized that, in making inventories of collection capabilities, it was not intended that the CCPC should attempt to involve itself more deeply in the operational details of collection activities of individual IAC or USCIB agencies than was necessary to satisfy that requirement. He noted that any member of IAC or USCIB who considered that any CCPC activity was going too far in such a direction might raise this question at the IAC or USCIB level.

c. The Chairman suggested that the first order of business for the CCPC should be in the field of the collection of data on Soviet guided missile activities. He indicated that the IAC and USCIB members should be prepared to nominate their representatives on the committee and that those representatives must have all necessary clearances. The Chairman added that the questions of assignments for, and the composition of, the CCPC would be considered further at the next regular IAC meeting. The IAC and USCIB members concurred in this procedure.

b. Review of Sensitive Situations

The members discussed recent developments in the Indonesian situation, with Mr. Cumming and General Schow in particular commenting on reports regarding the extent of the loyalty of various units of the central government's army to that government. Mr. Cumming also invited the members' attention to possible measures that the United Kingdom might take to protect its shipping in Indonesian waters. The members then discussed the implications of such a British move, as well as the nature and effect of the blockade by the central government of shipping in that area.

The Chairman and members exchanged views on the North African situation, including reports bearing on tension or fighting in various places in the area and the question of the probable location of airfields being used by the French aircraft in their operations in West Africa.

The Chairman and Mr. Cumming commented on recent developments in Argentina, such as the possibility of the return of Peron to that country and the position of the government with respect to legal recognition of the Peronista party.

9. Discussion re US Announcement of Soviet Nuclear Test

After the question was raised by General Lewis, the members discussed with Mr. Jenkins the circumstances surrounding, and procedures followed by the AEC in making the recent public announcement regarding a Soviet nuclear test, particularly from the standpoint of advance notice provided to the intelligence community.
