Rwanda:

Humanitarian Crisis Explodes

[redacted] reports 1.2 million refugees are already in Goma, and more than 200,000 are arriving each day. [redacted] officials fear fighting could break out between local residents and refugees as water and food supplies tighten, [redacted]

[redacted] officials say that up to 2 million Rwandans in the French safe zone are heading for Bukavu; this weekend some 100,000 Rwandans entered Bukavu. A massive influx into the area—where the road network is poor, airfields have even less capacity than in Goma, and there is little open space—could present a major challenge to relief agencies.

— The Hutu radio and local leaders are urging Hutus to flee the French zone before the RPF arrives [redacted]

— Even if the RPF declares a cease-fire and announces a coalition government, panicked flight into Zaire probably will continue. [redacted]
