[redacted]AFRICA*Rwanda: Odds for Cease-Fire Poor

The UN commander in Kigali says that the Rwandan Government is trying to recruit 50,000 civilians in addition to three newly formed battalions that were sent south to halt the Tutsi-dominated Rwandan Patriotic Front and that neither side will adhere to the reported cease-fire. [redacted]

[redacted] The RPF has announced that its next target is Kigali airport, which is controlled jointly by UN troops and the Rwandan military.

- Hardline Hutu military officers and politicians may be trying to create the basis of a guerrilla force that could harass the RPF or international peacekeepers in southern Rwanda.
- By expanding the numbers of the armed militia that have been murdering Tutsis and moderate Hutus, the government will increase the risk to remaining Tutsis and discourage Tutsi refugees from returning. [redacted]
