a. During 1973 the USLP conducted political campaigns designed to acquaint large numbers of the general public with the NCLC and its activities.

b. NCLC national offices in New York and Detroit maintain "war rooms" that contain maps on which are shown all major industries, national resource locations, major shipping routes and seaports, military facilities, supply depots and military projects. These maps are intended to get a better perspective on whether strikes can be started and then expanded to upset the means of production in the country.

c. To counter the alleged Rockefeller/CIA efforts to change the course of natural resources and climate conditions to benefit their eventual takeover, the NCLC is doing studies on all power companies, firms responsible for construction of the Alaskan Pipeline, weather climate changes, and the use of laser beams to cause tornados.

d. In February 1974, the NCLC launched "Operation Nuremberg" to expose, among others, Columbia University professors whose ideas allegedly are being drawn upon by the CIA to modify the behavior of extensive sectors of the population. Methods to be used in this expose included leafletting and disruption of classes of the professors involved. The NCLC planned to bring those involved to trial under International Law. By April 1975 the scope of this movement had been broadened with NS attacking figures abroad as "Nuremberg Criminals" as well.

8. Chronology of NCLC Activities

a. In April 1973, the NCLC launched "Operation Mop-up" aimed at destroying the CPUSA. A number of goon squads of 25 to 50 members traveled throughout the country disrupting meeting of the CPUSA, the Young Workers Liberation League (YWLL), the Socialist Workers Party (SWP), and the Young Socialist Alliance (YSA). In some cases members of these groups were physically assaulted.<sup>3</sup>

b. On 7 August 1973 eight NCLC members were arrested in the Old Senate Office Building for disrupting the Watergate Committee hearings.<sup>3</sup>

c. On 8 August 1973 eight NCLC members were arrested in Washington for staging a 5-minute demonstration against alleged domestic spying by the CIA.<sup>3</sup>

d. On 5 September 1973, ten NCLC members were arrested in Newark, N. J. for disrupting a City Council meeting.<sup>3</sup>

e. On 13 December 1973, the NCLC filed a class action suit against the NYC Police Department charging police misconduct.<sup>3</sup>

g. On 25 February 1974 ten NCLC members were arrested at Columbia University after invading the office of ~~psychology professor Eugene Galanter~~ who the NCLC charged was a "Nazi Doctor" involved in brainwashing at the University. They claimed to be gathering evidence so Galanter could be indicted under the Nuremberg Law for Crimes Against Humanity.<sup>3</sup> NY

h. On 7 March 1974, the NCLC demonstrated against an award to ~~UAW President Leonard Woodcock~~ by the Americans for Democratic Action National Roosevelt Day dinner.<sup>3</sup> NY

On 30 April 1975, USLP member Arthur Leaderman, Bureau Chief, NSIPS in NYC, at a press conference in Washington discussed the meaning of a "new NATO doctrine" which he alleged is outlined in NATO document "MC14/4", i.e., the Schlesinger Doctrine. According to Leaderman, this document established as NATO policy the acceptance of tactical nuclear warfare following a "staged confrontation" between the US and the USSR. He also alleged this policy is causing a "fractional situation" to arise within the NATO command. The tone of his press conference was to make the USSR appear to be the potential victim of US foreign policy as applied to NATO.. Leaderman also told the group that the West German police had conducted a raid on ELC Headquarters in Wiesbaden on 29 April 1975 in an attempt to uncover the "High Bundeswehr Source" who reportedly had revealed this information to the NSIPS representatives. 16
