EICHMANN Trial Visit

REFERENCES
NFV-A-2134, 2 May 1961

1. Although [] does enjoy the advantage of an adequate cover, Headquarters is surprised that [] would reveal his close connection with [] to the Embassy and permit a situation to develop whereby the Charge could call [] office and perhaps forbid him to visit the trial.
2. Charges are notoriously insecure and under the circumstances between two Ambassadors, it would have been preferable to have said nothing to the Embassy or to have refused the invitation.
3. In reference to paragraph 12, the predominant impression in Israel may be one of dignity, but the publicity it is getting in the United States certainly equals the HAUPTMANN trial reporting, and this despite the fact that Cuba, Laos, etc., have taken a good share of the newspaper.
4. [] might ask how the 100 tourists a day are selected to visit the trial. We have a report to the effect that the Israel Tourist Bureau in New York City is selling a package EICHMANN trial tour for $2,000 which includes trial tickets.
