E. HEINE AS A MEMBER OF THE FOREST BROTHERHOOD

Introduction

The following outline deals exclusively with the period between Heine's escape from POW camp in Tallinn 1946 and recapture during the Song Festival in 1950 while in Estonia. The purpose of this outline is to assist in further questioning, to establish events under oath and to discover discrepancies. If successful, either or both of the two objectives will be met:

1. Heine's story as told in Viirlaid's books, in film and at public meetings is in substance not true.
2. There is a serious discrepancy with answers given to deposition taken in Washington.

There is a basic assumption that has to be satisfied in order to meet the objectives:

It will be permissible to explore Heine's background by questioning about this period. A suggestion: If objections are raised, direct questions to Heine along the line: "Are there any reasons why you decline to discuss your background", etc., might be helpful. Considering his psychological attitude and behaviour patterns, the possibility of a newspaper headline "Heine Declines to Discuss His Past", etc., there is reason to believe that he may consent.

Another assumption is that prior to being deposed, Heine will have studied and memorized his answers to the deposition taken in Washington in 1965. If this is true, then the line of questioning proposed herein may tend to complicate his effort to repeat a previous story. Events in this outline were also related by him to A. Viirlaid and some also appeared in the film and at public lectures. The significance lies in the fact that many of these events are markedly different or missing in the deposition.

Sources

All events listed are based on the three books by A. Viirlaid in Estonian language. For cross reference, some of the more important statements (or absence of them) in the deposition are also shown. For reference the sources are tabulated as follows:

- A - "Vaim ja Ahelad" ("Spirit and the Chains"). This book is also translated into English under the title "Rain for the River"
- B - "Kustuvad Tuled" (The Fading Lights)
- C - "Sadu Jokke" ("Rain for the River") - not to be confused with source A
- D - Deposition taken in Washington, Feb. - March, 1965

The events are listed in sequence starting with the escape in 1946 and terminating with recapture in 1950. Sources are shown in the margin by letter designation followed by page number where the item can be found or the description of an event begins.
