The following French people were attached to the Kommando :

- X Unterscharfuehrer Jean (?) OLIVIERI X B
- X Unterscharfuehrer Louis MARIN X B
- X Leo MARTIN X D
- Blanche GIEU

There were also seven other French people whose names OSTRICH does not know. He gave their cover names to Captains Masse of the Securite Militaire at Froiburg.

In addition OSTRICH mentions Pierre LAGARDERE, Edmond COLOMBANI, and Gerard LITT. There were two women with LAGARDERE, one named Francine and the other Mimi GUINAND (?). Mme. VLEGEN and her son, Mme. ZELLER and her son, and Mme. HARREL were to remain in the Waldruhe Villa at Badenweiler. In addition, according to OSTRICH, there was a French maid who came with the group from Belfort.

Because the original plans of the Kommando could not be carried out DUFFNER decided to form small groups of capable people and have them join in the guerilla warfare.

According to the last orders given by HESEKOW, Pierre LAGARDERE was to be passed into Switzerland by the WALZ organization with Francine and Mimi GUINAND and they were then to go on to France. OSTRICH feels that this plan could not have been carried out because of the shortness of time.

The group of seven French people whose names OSTRICH does not know were to be sent with Obersturmfuehrer DOEROWICH to NEISSER in San Remo, but again OSTRICH feels that the project could not have been carried out because of the lack of time.

The group made up of DUNKER, MARTIN, GIEU, OLIVIERI and MARINI was split up by OSTRICH who caused trouble between DUNKER and his mistress GIEU and among the other men with the result, according to OSTRICH, that the group will not be in action anymore.

About the 15 April DUFFNER sent a truck to the Auswoissquartier of Amt VI/S which at that time was at Hof or Altal in Bavaria, for obtaining sabotage material. OSTRICH does not know if the truck returned or not.

Kommando HAGEN is now, according to OSTRICH, in the "Jugendhorbergo" at Schlaachtenhausen where they have a food dump and a sabotage material dump.

When OSTRICH first saw BESEKOW and SKORZENY at the end of January there was a discussion about the possibility of attempts against the lives of various military and political personalities. OSTRICH was told that an attempt against DE GAULLE was not desirable at that moment, but that, on the contrary, attempts against the lives of prominent Communists like THOREZ were desirable.

OSTRICH also stated that later on while he was at Badonweiler he delivered a lecture to several high SS officers about the general situation in France. At the end of the lecture Hauptsturmführer KUBAT and Oberleutnant DERKSEN asked OSTRICH what he thought of General De Lattre De Tassigny. They asked him if he thought it would be of any use to get into direct contact with De Tassigny. They also asked OSTRICH if he thought De Tassigny was pro-American, if he were not more friendly to the English, or if he were possibly accessible to the idea of a Europe for the Europeans and to the idea of collaboration between Germany and France against the Communists. OSTRICH was not told whether they were going to try to get in touch with De Tassigny or not, but in later discussions which he overheard between KUBAT and DERKSEN and other SS and SD people OSTRICH thought there must exist some idea on the part of the Germans of getting into touch with De Tassigny and that perhaps Standartenführer HICKLER had actually made an attempt already.

1 May 1945.

OSTRICH gave the following information about Kommando ADLER which he says is a Wehrmacht undertaking.

The Kommandoführer is Oberleutnant MERCK alias Captain KAISER whose description is as follows: 38; about 1m70; strong build; light brown hair; asthmatic; wears Wehrmacht uniform and always wears a silk scarf.

The headquarters of the Kommando was in a hostelry, Gaststätte Waldhorn at Schweighof near Badenweiler. The Kommando is under the orders of the 10 of the XVIII SS AK Hauptsturmführer KUBAT and has about thirty members. The purpose of Kommando ADLER was Frontaufklärung and intelligence work behind the Allied lines but KUBAT told OSTRICH that the Kommando had never succeeded in accomplishing anything despite the fact that they had been given special gas rations. OSTRICH saw the Kommando for the last time about the 15th of April and has no further information about it.

Under Kommando ADLER there were two other Kommandos. One was the Kommando KIEBITZ whose headquarters were in the restaurant Zum Krone at Sulzburg. The Kommandoführer was Unteroffizier OTT whose description is as follows; about 35-36; 1m65; brown hair slightly graying; wears glasses; smokes a pipe. Swiss from the Canton of Zurich. Speaks German and French with a Swiss accent. This Kommando was under Obargrefreiter Johnny PLUM from Cologne who was with PONIN last autumn in the Villa Sans Souci at Geradnor. PLUM was transferred about 12 April contrary to MERCK's wishes to the Sonderkommando Badonweiler. PLUM's description is as follows: about 38; 1m62; light brown hair; married with two children (his wife and children were with him); formerly a barman; has a high thin voice like a woman's. The purpose of Kommando KIEBITZ was the same as that of Kommando ADLER and like it has accomplished nothing.

Also under Kommando ADLER was the Kommando at Kandorn. OSTRICH does not know the name of the Kommando and knows only one member of the group, Louis DECEDRE alias Louis CHEVALLIER. The Kommando moved to Freiburg about the 10th of April where its headquarters were on the Kronenstrasse. The Kommandoführer was Unteroffizier WITTMANN whose description is as follows; about 33; 1m78; fairly strong build; light brown hair; nose bent to one side; red face; always in civilian clothes. Speaks good French. When OSTRICH saw WITTMANN about the 15th of April WITTMANN told him that the Kommando was going to move to Waldkirch. OSTRICH says that the purpose of Kommando was the same as that of Kommando ADLER and like it has also accomplished nothing.

OSTRICH also gave some information about a Kommando at Munsterhalden (Untermunsteral). This Kommando was under the direct orders of Hauptsturmführer KUBAT. The Kommandoführer was Untersturmführer PERNER whose description is; about 35; 1m75; slender athletic appearance; very blond thin hair; blue eyes; squashed nose; takes good care of the men under him and is admired by them; speaks good French; an Austrian. The description of Hauptsturmführer KUBAT is as follows: 33; 1m68; young and open face; blond hair; formerly in the Wehrmacht and was a battalion chief on the Russian front; in 1942 was a simple soldier and became an officer because of his courage; has several high decorations; comes from the Eger region of the Sudetenland.

KUBAT asked Ostrich to visit the members of the Kommando located in the mountains at Untermunstertal and during the first part of April Ostrich went there. The day he arrived five of FERNER's men were preparing to leave via Switzerland for France in order to carry out a short mission for the purpose of gathering military information. This group was under the orders of an Alsatian called HAMM. Ostrich does not know whether this was a cover or a real name. HAMM was 33; ln70; heavily built; dark brown hair; very large mouth; bad teeth. He had a number of high decorations. The group was to be back within a week but had not returned at the end of a fortnight. KUBAT said that he had successfully sent a man across the Allied lines each week and that they had even sent men back across the Rhine. They had been successful in obtaining military information but they had done no sabotage. The group under HAMM were to be headed through Switzerland by the Organisation WALZ.

Ostrich also gave some information on Organisation WALZ which is headed by Obersturmfuehrer WALZ whom Ostrich knew in Mulhausen in 1942. WALZ is running an organisation which helps people to pass through Switzerland into France. Through his contacts in Switzerland WALZ is able to pass groups of five and six men into France. With the help of a Swiss customs official at the Franzachof Horn to whom WALZ gives information on people in Switzerland who are wanted for arrest, thus enabling the Swiss customs official to get in the good graces of his superiors, WALZ sends his men by car through Switzerland directly to Montbeliard and Besancon. When they arrive at the French frontier they pose as inspectors of French food supplies. Oberleutnant DERKSEN, Kompaniefuehrer of Kompanie Skorpion Rheingau Propaganda Abteilung, told Ostrich that with the aid of WALZ's organisation he had been able to spend a week in France at the end of March travelling as an inspector of food supplies. Ostrich says that WALZ had his headquarters in the building of the Landgericht in Lorrach. WALZ also had his own radio station and a Gotante Aussenstelle at Grenzach in the Cafe Ekert. Mention was frequently made of an Untersturmfuehrer EKERT but Ostrich does not know if there is any connection between EKERT and the Cafe Ekert.

The following people were connected with Organisation WALZ.

- X WALZ: real name MALZACHER X
42; ln73; light brown curly hair; stooping walk; distinguished looking; always wears civilian clothes; comes from the region between Basle and Constance. Was chief of the Ast at Altkirch in Alsace.
- X WAGNER: X
Oberleutnant. 45; ln68; heavy set; very short hair cut; typical German official; comes from the region of Lorrach.
- X Kurt FISCHER: Hauptmann X about 35; ln75; blond; slender; badly wounded in the shoulder and in other parts of the body; plays poker.
- X Loro MUEHLICH:
Secretary. ln65; brown hair combed high.

Ostrich also said about WALZ that the two of them had been close friends but that after WALZ had heard the story told by TONIN about Ostrich, WALZ was extremely suspicious of him.

Ostrich also reported on the Kompanie Skorpion Rheingau Propaganda Abteilung of the XVIII SS AK which was under the orders of the Ic of the XVIII SS AK Hauptsturmfuehrer KUBAT. Kompanie Skorpion was composed chiefly of members of the SS Propaganda Standarte Kurt EGGERS. There were between sixty to seventy men in the Kompanie. The headquarters of the Kompanie was at Untermunstertal and the Kompanie fuehrer was Oberleutnant DERKSEN. The purpose of Kompanie was to spread propaganda among the French troops. They sent over tracts contained in specially made grenades; they put up big signs along the Rhine bank; they sent over propaganda in gas-filled balloons or in Montgolfieri balloons. In addition they were supposed to encourage the German troops at the front.

Three aussenstellen which were called trupps made up Kompanie Skorpion. The first Trupp was in Wasser between Freiburg and Opchburg. This was the balloon trupp. The second trupp was at Schweighof near Badenweiler and the third at Kandern between Badenweiler and Lorrach. The last two trupps were especially for slogans, tracts and signs.

While OSTRICH was in Freiburg in March and April he reports that he frequently saw some young men and women who obviously belonged to some organization. OSTRICH states that he met a young woman who belonged to this group. Her name was Hildegard HAUCK who was an embroiderer, small and brunette. She told OSTRICH that the group had about twenty members under the orders of a Major H.A.S. The headquarters of the group was at Wilhelm Gustloffstrasse 19, Freiburg. They were instructed in radio and were to be stay-behind W/T agents after the Allied occupation. OSTRICH knows nothing further about the organization.
