28 November 1972

Attached is a bio sheet on Herr Eberhard BLUM, the local BND representative. I find him all right but am not really begeistert with him. He is a bit pushy, but in a gentlemanly way. He is more or less in exile in Washington as a right-wing CDU man who was in effect removed when the SPD gang took over.

Considering his rather bad press (arrogant, not too friendly to Americans, inflexible, office tyrant, etc.) I find ZUBER rather impressive. He asks intelligent questions and seems to want to hear our opinions about things. I reviewed his file and think much of his bad press stems from his association with the RSHA and Waffen SS which he and everybody else knows about. From the file I gather he is smart, tough with subordinates and a guy who keeps on top of all the details. One of the CASCOPEs said his biggest shortcoming was trying to find simplistic solutions to complex problems and make the facts fit into his theories.

In his talk with General Walters today, ZUBER brought up the topic of cooperating with CIA in some areas where German interests alone do not warrant any BND presence. He said that some smaller countries in Africa were being especially nice to the Germans for the twofold reasons that the Germans have money in their aid program and also that the Germans are not saddled with the burden of having been a colonial power.

It is possible he will bring up this topic with you. FYI there is one such deal possibly pending. The BND has offered to put an officer in Beirut to work against the East German and terrorist targets under supervision of [redacted] NE here seemed to favor the idea as a trial, but when [redacted] said it was over-worked and could not handle it, NE here switched its position, which is embarrassing to us. The BND does not know that the outlook for this particular project is not too bright, although the [redacted] is coming to Munich in December for a review of the matter.

I personally do not think there is anything sinister in this BND offer to cooperate with us abroad. They have relatively very few people abroad and do not really know how to go it on their own in most areas. If ZUBER brings up topic, I would suggest you say something along the lines of everything being a case-by-case basis and you always willing examine specific proposal, such as activity directed against the East Germans in some Latin American country. The CAMOTET program, which has never really gotten off ground, but which I and BND agree is good idea, was for them to put a staffer in some place like NEPAL or Beirut to work against East Germans in coordination with []

Incidentally, you might ask him where Baumeister is. He was in Hamburg until last year. I tried to look him up, but he was "auf Reisen abgemeldet" about a month before I got to him. One of his colleagues told me he was in an "equatorial region" so maybe he is in Africa.
