Mr. T. Babbitt, AD/ORE (tel) - DCI had just received two complaints from the White House: 1) Have observed that the Daily Summary recently has been limited to a short briefing on the Korean situation and perhaps an item on Germany. It was the President's feeling that there had been developments in other parts of the world and surely some of them would be noteworthy. DCI suggested that ORE might build up the Summary to 4 or 5 pages, however, he did not wish the inclusion of items which might have been released to the press.

2) At the NSC meeting yesterday, General Bradley had given the strength report on the North Koreans as much greater than that reflected on our map furnished to the President. The President has requested clarification. DCI suggested a short memo be prepared on this.

The Vice President had commented on the number of casualties reported for the North Koreans but that there didn't appear to be a corresponding decrease in the enemy force, and therefore inquired if the North Koreans were filling the vacancies by conscription or some other means.

Later, Mr. Babbitt reported in connection with item 2) that our estimate of Korean strength might approach that given by General Bradley if we considered that obtained from "all sources". DCI stated he felt the correct figure should be reflected on the map furnished the President, regardless of source.

Mr. Babbitt also suggested that possibly General Bradley had included the strength of North Korean forces not at the frontlines.

that if the FBI would not handle for the Justice Department, that the matter would have to be referred to the Attorney from the domestic angle beside the FBI. DCI suggested

Mr. G. C. Mandley, BuPers (tel) -

Mr. Carlson, U. S. Civil Service Commission - Had loyalty file for delivery; suggested he deliver personally to Col. Edwards, I&SS, in the absence of the DCI from his office.

Mr. Patrick Coyne, NSC (tel) - DCI stated need for clarification of the Presidential directive to acquire the Schmidt device--there are conflicting interpretations.

After conferring with Mr. Ladd, FBI, it had been determined that the Bureau were not interested in acquiring the device because they have an instrument which adequately meets their requirements and could be made available to other domestic needs. CIA does not have this type instrument but does have something which gives the same results. Further, it has been suggested that Navy Dept. has a device which is superior to the Schmidt gadget, and some consideration should be given to acquiring the best available.

Mr. Coyne suggested that DCI contact Mr. Ladd, FBI, to arrange a meeting at which time the intent of the directive could be discussed.

Mr. D. M. Ladd, FBI (tel) - DCI inquired if a meeting could be set up for Monday to meet with Mr. Coyne, NSC, in connection with the Presidential directive on the Schmidt device. Mr. L. R. Houston, General Counsel - Directed to hold in abeyance further negotiations with Mr. Schmidt, Conference with Col. Sheffield Edwards, Chief of Inspection and Security Staff, in regard to work of his staff.

7. Conference with Mr. Shane MacCarthy, Office of Coordination, Operations and Policy Staff, in regard to his report on handling of escapees. Prior to General Smith's arrival, Mr. Harriman had telephoned me in regard to Mr. MacCarthy and suggested I have a talk with MacCarthy on the subject of his report. Read the report, which has now been delivered to General Smith, believe that it has only a very indirect relationship to CIA, constitutes a theoretical approach to what is an enormous practical problem; and when convenient for General Smith, it might be advisable for him to discuss it with the Deputy.

Conference with Mr. Walter Pforzheimer, Office of General Counsel, in regard to proposed draft of National Security Council paper affecting coordination activities of CIA, copy of which was delivered to General Smith with covering memo from the Deputy. The proposed directive has immediate bearing on the whole question of the CIA mission and work has been initiated by the Deputy in an effort to arrive at a definitive statement of the CIA mission.

The dinner meeting was in particular a follow-up of my earlier conversation with Mr. Alexander. The point of view I expressed both to Alexander and to those present last night was that the Central Intelligence Agency, as it developed, might supply the answer to their question and that, in any event, the solution of their problem should be deferred for at least six months and, finally, that if a civilian intelligence liaison office was needed anywhere, it should be placed in the office of the Secretary of Defense and not in any one or all of the Service Departments.

No further reply to Mr. [redacted] was required since I had already told him at lunch that I did not think there was a position in CIA commensurate with his experience and abilities.

Brief conference with Mr. Shannon in which he was informed that an additional Cadillac automobile is not needed by the Deputy, and that cars should not be exclusively assigned to anyone in the organization but be made available from the pool when needed.

Conference with Admiral Hillenkoetter and General Smith and subsequent conference with General Smith in regard to NSC 10/2 and NSC 50, and also in regard to proposed NSC directive relating to mission of CIA to produce national intelligence estimates. Consideration is being given by Legal Staff to the interpretation of NSC 10/2 and the necessity, if it exists, for any clarifying revisions. Am giving first priority to work by me personally on proposed directive of NSC as to CIA mission, with a view to briefing General Smith on background of present controversy between CIA on the one hand and State Department and Defense on the other, essential matters in dispute, if any, and necessity, if any, for a new directive.
