How odd that someone would be CIAGOV. Wonder if that person works here? If so, the security folks would probably not be very happy with that.

Terms of Service agreement for Facebook, attached. We'll need this signed -- like YouTube -- before we set up the page.

As an FYI - I checked with Adam, and ciagov is not available. Evidently, someone is using that as a personal profile name. Since the person is in good standing and not posing as CIA, Facebook will not request back the username. So, we'll be www.facebook.com/cia when we get our page online.

Hi

Good to talk to you the other day.

- Please send any fake sites you find to us so we can have them removed. Also would be great to know if your recruiting side is still doing things on FB.
- I've attached our GSA negotiated Federal Government TOS. You'll want to have it signed before you create a page.
- Below is the contact information for Dan Hubbard from Websense (Dan Hubbard <dhubbard@websense.com>) which makes a paid product called Defensio. I've also included a description below.
- I will let you know when our security chief is next in town.

best,

adam

I wanted to introduce you to Dan from Websense (<http://www.websense.com>) which has created a great new application for Facebook Pages called Defensio for Facebook (<http://defensio.com>) which provides complete security coverage for a Facebook including. RWW (http://www.readwriteweb.com/archives/websense\_launches\_first\_ever\_security\_suite\_for\_facebook.php) described it as:

Websense <<http://www.websense.com/>> has just launched a new security suite for the web, a product called Defensio 2.0 <<http://defensio.com>>. The main selling point of this software is its ability to protect users from malicious content posted to their Facebook <<http://www.facebook.com>> profiles. Using a combination of technologies which include a URL category blocker, a profanity filter, an executable file blocker, and a script blocker, users can configure what content can appear on their Facebook profiles or their public pages. In addition to offering Facebook security, Defensio offers blog protection, too, supporting a number of platforms including Wordpress and Drupal.
