NAZI WAR CRIMES DISCLOSURE ACT
DATE 2006

1. FOSS, an artillery man and onetime active officer of the Czarist army, fought in the Volunteer Army first under Gen. DENIKIN and later under Gen. WRANGEL. In 1920, he was evacuated to Bulgaria with the rest of the Volunteer Army.

2. In Sofia, FOSS (an ardent Russian Nationalist, anti-Communist and bitter enemy of the Soviet regime) began his intelligence work against the Soviets with the support of the Abwehr sec. of the Bulgarian General Staff. He also organized an anti-Soviet net-work in the Soviet Union itself. During this time he received information from Gen. TURKUL in Berlin who worked together with the Japanese General Staff.

3. Shortly before the outbreak of war, the German General Staff turned to FOSS with the request that they also receive information. FOSS agreed, however with the stipulation that his relations with Gen. TURKUL be maintained. Although the German General Staff protested energetically against this, FOSS held firmly to this stipulation.

4. In September, 1939, after Germany had begun the second World War and had signed a treaty with Soviet Russia, FOSS broke off with Berlin and offered his services to the French General Staff. The French showed great interest, but on the condition that they receive the names of all those in the Soviet Union who belonged to his organization.

5. FOSS refused to agree to this and, afterwards when Germany declared war on the Soviet Union, he immediately entered the service of one of the German staffs on the Eastern Front.

6. After the capitulation of the Germans, he went to Bavaria where he worked as a forestry foreman. FOSS is presently in Munich where he is working for a Russian businessman named MOISEJENKO (or MOISEJEW, who, according to our Munich Representative, is a swindler).

7. 307/2 is of the opinion that Subject would be in a good position either to furnish or to recruit agents for penetration of Russian-occupied territory or Russia.

Capt. FOSS lived in Roumania before the war; was a double D/A (when the Germans came to Roumania he turned in four British agents, KARPINSKIJ, Vladimir; PLATNITSKIJ; and OSCHNJUK, and a fourth whose name Source does not know). All four were hanged in Belgrade. FOSS was sent to the town of Nikolaijev, Russia, by the German I.S. FOSS is now located in a camp in Munich called "the firm MOISEJEW" and is known as ALEXANDROW and is connected with TURKUL.
