

SUGGESTED DRAFT

1. Statement of the Problem.

To examine and present possible conditions which will effect the Russian proposals to Germany for an armistice and peace.

2. Facts Bearing on the Problem.

On 21 July 1943, Pravda published a manifesto to the German people which called for immediate action. Germans all alone and the German Army was called upon to overthrow the Hitler government, to cease military operations, to recall the German troops to the Reich Frontiers, to embark on peace negotiations and renounce all conquests.

3. List of Events Related to the Manifesto.

a. 7 November 1942 and again on 23 February 1943 Stalin claimed the aim of the Soviet Union was not the destruction of the German nation or even the dissolution of the German Army.

b. Stalin never endorsed specifically the Casablanca unconditional surrender pronouncement.

c. The minutes of the last Washington conference, were sent to Stalin by officer courier. They disclosed that no invasion of Europe - except possibly Italy - was contemplated in 1943. Stalin replied to Roosevelt by cable that the Anglo-American plan for 1943 was unsatisfactory.

d. On 6 August, only 16 days after the Moscow Manifesto, Pravda published an article claiming the United States and Great Britain, in particular Roosevelt, Churchill and Harry Hopkins, had broken faith with the U.S.S.R. in that they promised a 1943 invasion in France which they later repudiated.

e. Stalin has repeatedly refused to meet with Churchill and Roosevelt for discussion of war and post war plans.

f. There are no Soviet Ambassadors in Washington and London.

g. Oumansky has advised the South American Labor Congress which met in Havana not to be too close to the United Nations for important developments were anticipated in the near future.

4. It is becoming increasingly clear that Germany must effect an armistice, at least on the Eastern Front, or be destroyed.

* 8 *

6. Aspects of a Separate Peace Favorable to the U.S.S.R.

Soviet losses may have reached twenty five million, one third of which were soldiers.

Russians are war weary, psychologically ripe for peace.

The Soviet food and industrial situation is critical.

A separate peace would foster Soviet influence in central Europe and the Balkans.

Carpathian frontiers would put Stalin in position to control Romanian oil; the fertile Ukraine would be returned.

The U.S.S.R. resents Anglo-American interference in central Europe.

Stalin may feel justified in making a separate peace because Anglo-American pledges for a 1943 major invasion were repudiated at the last Washington conference.

6. Aspects of a Separate Peace Favorable to Germany.

Strength from Eastern Front is needed to meet the ever increasing Anglo-American pressure and to replace Italian units in France and the Balkans.

Peace with U.S.S.R. would offset the blow dealt German morale by the unexpected fall of Mussolini which placed heavy stress on Hitler's position.

German peace-time economy complements that of the U.S.S.R.

Although Germany is still capable of terrific retaliatory measures, continuation of Eastern Front means eventual German defeat and dismemberment.

7. Consequences of a Separate Peace.

The danger in the Moscow Manifesto lies in the fact that its terms are more attractive than those yet offered by the United Nations. We have demanded unconditional surrender; we have made promises to oppressed peoples.*

Peace with the U.S.S.R. would release 200 German Divisions from the Eastern Front. German junior officers, to include the grade of Colonel, are selected from the ranks. Under the Nazi system these officers are very close to their men. German France hopes for the Rhineland; Poland wants Danzig and East Prussia; Czechoslovakia desires to be reconstituted and expand.

character is not addicted to revolution. Were it peace to come on the Eastern Front, the possibility that it will be orderly if the Army in firm control and able to shift its strength to the front, must be faced.

A separate peace, under control of the Army, precludes the possibility of an Anglo-American major invasion of Europe.

Conceivably with a strong new government, Germany might invade Spain in an attempt to cut off our Mediterranean forces.

The withdrawal of the German Army from the West and the overthrow of Hitler, conceivably might end in a Red Revolution.

Whether or not a separate peace leads to violence or is orderly, Soviet influence will be far greater than that of the United States and Great Britain. Ambitious to create a strong Germany so as to bulwark Europe against Communism, Great Britain would probably hasten to make peace. Unable to control the situation, the United States would be forced to follow Britain.

8. Counter-measures for the U.S.S.R.

Because of the grave implications of the Moscow Manifesto, the United Nations should again attempt to engage Stalin in forthright conversations.* Certain pressures and inducements can be offered the Soviets to continue their magnificent effort.

Pressures:

Loss of Lend-Lease would be a deadly blow.

Proposal of an Anglo-American Balkan campaign would interfere with Soviet plans for this area.

Threats of peace with Japan which permit Japanese control of Manchuria and the Sea of Japan would be most disturbing.

Inducements:

Point out that a just and lasting peace can be achieved in 1944 if only the United Nations remain united.

* For more than a month Ambassador Stanley has been unable to secure an appointment with Stalin; President Roosevelt has repeatedly sought a personal conference; he offered to meet Stalin in Teheran. After Casablanca, General Marshall contemplated a trip to Moscow, but was advised that unless he had urgent military plans to propose the trip would not be worthwhile. Stalin has no Ambassador in Washington and London.

* 8 *

Continue lend-lease.

Give Stalin full participation in the final Armistice.

Promise ever increasing heavy bombardment of Germany.

Promise him his proper role in the European peace.

Pledge to eliminate the Japanese menace.

Promise post war assistance in rehabilitation, especially medical and technical assistance.

Promise to assume our full responsibility for maintenance of peace.

Promise a prompt, reasonable solution to Stalin's demands for new Balkan and Central European frontiers.

9. Counter-measures for Germany.

After attempting forthright conversations, if Stalin continues to remain noncommittal, of necessity we must be prepared on a moments notice to present to Germany counter-measures to offset Stalin's Armistice and peace proposals.

Explain that Unconditional Surrender applies to Hitler and his gangsters.

Offer security and justice to the conservative westward looking elements of Germany.

Pledge no vengeance except to war criminals who have been duly tried and found guilty.

Promise Germany peace with honor, 1919 territorial integrity, security, food, the right to choose a liberal government, assistance in rehabilitation, protection from vengeance of her European neighbors and the Soviets.

Conclusions:

That a separate peace is a possibility.

That a separate peace on the Eastern Front will lead to negotiated peace.

That in the event of a separate peace, an independent Germany might be advantageous to the United States.

That the U.S.S.R. has offered Germany more attractive terms than can the United Nations.

That the United States should be prepared to occupy Europe and shift her offensive weight to the Pacific.

7 August 1943.

*SECRET*U.S. INTELLIGENCE SERVICES

The gathering, evaluation, and dissemination of accurate intelligence is one of the most vital tasks in war. An urgent, immediate need exists for the grouping of all government intelligence agencies under a single Director.

While I was in Cairo the State Department, the Commercial Attachés, Board of Economic Warfare, Strategic Services, Office of War Information, Legi-Lesse, C-2 of the American Theater, the U.S. Military and Naval Attachés, all reported independently. In addition, special representatives of the President, State, Agriculture, War and Navy Departments frequently arrived and after brief visits, made reports.

Our government has never had a Coordinating Agency, vested with authority, which was responsible for providing the type intelligence essential for the effective prosecution of this war.

A Director of Intelligence, would prevent duplication of effort. He would receive information from each existing agency, digest, evaluate, condense, indicate its relationship to the problem being considered, and present the distillation to the appropriate official.

In addition to military intelligence, the Director's field would cover psychological, political, and economic intelligence, their relation to the war and the peace which follows.

The Director of Intelligence need create only a small staff on which each Intelligence Branch should be represented. Existing Branches would retain their old identities and continue to perform their normal functions. The Director would act as Coordinator, and as an efficiency expert over the various intelligence agencies. He must have authority to reorganize, cut down, and strengthen as circumstances warrant. The Director would have to be outstandingly talented, with the rank of Lieutenant General, and responsible only to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Dear General Donovan:

I have been informed that your agency may have a certain amount of radio equipment which you may declare surplus. Our agency is particularly interested in obtaining radio receivers, selectable side-band receiving systems, direction finders, and other electronic devices.

Will you kindly advise if your agency intends to declare such equipment surplus and, if so, the conditions under which it might be transferred to the Engineering Department of this Commission without exchange of funds, since we have no appropriation that is available for that purpose at this time.

A member of your staff may obtain information as to the quantity, types, and other particulars, of equipment required by our agency by communicating directly with Mr. G. E. Sterling, Chief of the Radio Intelligence Division.

Your consideration of our requirements will be sincerely appreciated.

Dear Mr. Porter:

I agree with the suggestion in your letter of 14 February 1948 that it would be most useful to have Mr. Ellis Porter, now Chief Editor of PBIS, discuss with our principal officers the use which is made or which might be made of radio intelligence. Lt. Sterling Nicholson, whose extension is 646, is an officer with whom Mr. Porter can discuss our general needs and one who will be in a position to arrange for such further meetings with other personnel as might be desirable.

Dear General Donovan:

The Director of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service advises me that certain reorganization has been accomplished in that division of the Federal Communications Commission which will be of interest to you. The primary objectives of this reorganization are to make more sure that the needs of federal departments and agencies for radio broadcast intelligence are fully understood, and to increase the certainty that all members of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service staff who prepare radio intelligence for distribution act with the needs of the departments or agencies fully in mind.

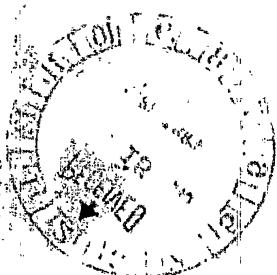

With those ends in view, Mr. Ellis Porter, formerly Chief of the Publications Division of FBI, has been appointed Chief Editor. Mr. Porter's primary duties henceforth will be to study the radio intelligence needs of departments and agencies and prepare the directives which will control the selecting and editing of broadcasts to be distributed to departments and agencies making use of the FBSI service.

I am sure you will agree that the greatest usefulness of this service to your organization will be realized if Mr. Porter has opportunity to discuss with principal officials in the various subdivisions of your department the use which is made or which might be made of radio intelligence. If you have not done so, I would appreciate it if you would designate a person in your department with whom Mr. Porter could discuss your general needs for radio intelligence and who would be able to arrange for such further meetings with your personnel as he and Mr. Porter might find desirable.

Dear Mr. Porter:

With reference to Mr. G. Michael Richardson's letter to Chairman F.C.C., dated May 22, 1964, this will advise you that Strategic Services Special Agent No. 11 has again been relieved. The previous 11 liaison work with the Federal Communications Commission, Mr. Sterling Richardson, Chief, Radio Intelligence Division, Office of Strategic Services, has been continued special liaison officer with your Agency in place of Mr. H. B. Allingham now relieved of this office.

In the absence of Mr. Richardson, his Assistant, Miss Madly C. Davis, will act in his behalf.

Mr. Richardson's duties will be those which were performed by Mr. Allingham, namely to coordinate for the Office of Strategic Services all contacts between this Agency and the Federal Communications Commission, on non-technical matters, and to facilitate the interchange of information between the two organizations.

DATE: March 30, 1943

Regarding the letter of March 26 from James Fly, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, asking that the Commission be supplied with the reports of the Foreign Nationalities Branch, I recommend a generally affirmative answer because the Federal Communications Commission has shown to this Branch a very cooperative disposition and their help is of real importance in connection with foreign language radio broadcasts in the United States and also with regard to foreign propaganda arriving from abroad.

This Branch does not maintain any list to which all its reports and memoranda are dispatched automatically. Every time anything goes out a responsible officer reviews the list with particular regard to the item about to be sent. If the Federal Communications Commission is added to our list there will still be constant safeguard respecting particular items.

You may care to acknowledge Mr. Fly's letter somewhat as follows:

I am informed that your staff is engaged in the study of events affecting nationality movements in the United States and foreign countries and the possible domestic repercussions of these activities.

In connection with its work in the field of foreign language broadcasting, the Commission would be considerably aided by this type of information. If reports are prepared on these studies, I would appreciate it if you would place the Commission on a list to receive all future releases. Dear Senator [Redacted]

I am responding to your letter dated 10 November 1964 addressed to this Office by the Foreign Intelligence Service, and your Committee is interested in the nature of the services in which the FIS is engaged or facilitated by subscribers.

This Office is a subscriber to the Service, broadcast as required by the Service. These transcripts, which are usually made from messages from friendly and non-hostile countries, are used by us like lines being followed by the offices in question at any given time. However, they often reveal, unintentionally at times, bits of information which can be put together by our analysts with facts derived from other sources to give us reliable political and economic intelligence concerning the country. We then turn such intelligence over our personnel in carrying on the duties assigned to us by the Vice-Chairmen of State.

I hope that this explanation of the service in which this Office uses the facilities of FIS will be of assistance to the Committee in its deliberations.

Very sincerely yours,

William J. Donovan

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR, OSS

SUBJECT: FCC -- Foreign Broadcast Intelligence.

1. Attached is a letter from the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, FCC, requesting the opinion of this agency on the value of the FBIS wire service, to be used before the Senate Committee on Appropriations.
2. A suggested letter of reply is also attached and recommended for your signature. Major Gleason, to whom the communication was addressed, has made inquiry among the various divisions of R&A, and reports that that Branch finds the service of great value and would consider the discontinuance a real loss in its work. If a reply is sent it would seem appropriate that it should go out over your signature.
3. Your attention is called to the fact that FCC has engaged in more than one altercation with Congress, and has been the subject of a House investigation. However, it appears from Mr. Leigh's letter that the Senate Committee has suggested that FCC obtain such statements for the Committee's information. Therefore it would seem that this agency is not inviting criticism if it gives a short statement of its own opinion on the value of the service.

Major S. Everett Gleason
 Office of Strategic Services
 Room 117, Central Building
 26th and K Streets, N.W.
 Washington 26, D.C.

Dear Major Gleason:

At the hearing on the Federal Communications Commission appropriations for the next fiscal year, held before the Senate Committee on Appropriations, question was raised by Committee members as to the usefulness of the FBIS wire service.

Because of our close connection day-to-day with our wire users, we have never made any written inquiry as to the importance or kind of use that you make of our wire service. On the other hand, the only valid proof of our usefulness as a service agency is evidence of the value which our users find in our product.

I made the suggestion at the hearing that the Committee inquire directly of our wire service subscribers so that the members could get an independent judgment for their own information. The Chairman, Senator McKellar, said that the Committee itself did not have the facilities for such an inquiry and suggested that we carry it on ourselves for the Committee's information.

I am, therefore, writing to ask if you will indicate the value to you of the "A" wire and, if possible, the ways in which you use it. The letter should be addressed to Senator Kenneth McKellar directly, in which case I would appreciate your sending me a copy, or the letter could be addressed to me, and I will send a copy to the Senate Committee on Appropriations.

I hope this request will not be too much of a burden to you, but would greatly appreciate your replying. The appraisal of the value of the wire service by its users will be very helpful to the Senate Appropriations Committee in determining whether to restore the amount of the drastic cut by the House (30% of the total appropriation) for FBIS next year - a cut which, if accepted by both houses, would be bound to curtail our service very greatly.

Dear Doctor Leloir:

Upon learning from Mr. Bullinger that you are considering the possibility of making available to American intelligence agencies the Rosaji broadcasts which are broadcast daily from Japan throughout the Japanese Empire, I am glad to express the earnest hope that you will find cause to estimate this proposal.

This would be of interest not only to the Research and Analysis Section of our Bureau, I think, but especially helpful to our Morale branch which would be interested in studying Japanese morale arguments directed to their own troops.

We would also be greatly interested in the suggestion that you may be able to set up an intercept station in Hawaii to pick up the Japanese section of broadcasts which it is believed will be available during four months of the year: from February to May.

We further understand from Mr. Bullinger that these intercepts differ from Rosaji broadcasts in that they deal with local broadcasts intended for the Japanese mainland only.

Let me express my appreciation of your cooperation in bringing these possibilities to my attention.

Very truly yours,
William J. Donovan

Mr. Bullinger, Assistant Director, Foreign Broadcast Division, FCC, came in on October 2nd and talked about getting us the intercepts from the Japanese Empire broadcasts from Tokyo.

He also spoke about a recent broadcast from Yugoslavia through up to the New York Times. He said there was some thought that this material may have been a plant and wondered if we knew anything about this broadcast material.

Enclosed are some comments made by Mr. Grandin, Mr. Bullinger's assistant.

Re: VTC message

Mr. Grandin stated they were not well done.
The program is written by a Yugoslav officer, who does not know much about American news values; for example, in one broadcast he spent most of his time talking about the scenery and the broadcast was low in news content.

The particular broadcast referred to above was the swearing in of volunteers with Mihailovitch.

Mr. Grandin believed the Yugoslav Embassy is distributing the copy received to all of the press associations. Mr. Grandin had not seen a message in over a week but that does not mean that they have not been received.

The reception is variable. Press wireless cannot always pick the broadcasts up.
They are sent high speed Morse.

FROM: Chief, MO Branch K.O.M.
SUBJECT: FCC

In accordance with your request I have visited Mr. Hallinger of FCC and continued the discussion of the subject he raised with you on 28 June. The following is the substance of what he has told me:

1. FCC is at the present time monitoring Japanese short wave broadcasts beamed at this country. They wish also to establish a forward base to monitor standard Japanese broadcasts destined for Japanese home consumption. These standard broadcasts can be heard at FCC's present listening post only from the months of December to March inclusive, and the rest of the year is a complete blank.
2. FCC's current appropriation has been severely cut, so that they will not be able to set up a new station to monitor Japanese home broadcasts, and may even have to reduce the service they can furnish OSS and other agencies in monitoring the short wave broadcasts. Mr. Hallinger stated that if either of these services was of value to us he would be glad to have a letter to that effect.
3. The Navy does not monitor Japanese home broadcasts, so that this material is not elsewhere available to us.

You will undoubtedly want to consult the IS Branches for their views on this subject. From the point of view of MO, I can say that the short wave broadcasts now available are of great value to us and that this value would be very substantially enhanced by having the standard home broadcasts as well. This would enable us to determine the divergences between the two lines and thereby discover Japanese vulnerabilities. I might add that I have discussed this matter with OWI and that they concur in the desirability of having Japanese home broadcasts monitored.

It is therefore recommended, subject to the concurrence of IB, that the Director's office prepare a letter to FCC emphasizing (a) the value of FCC's present service, and (b) the critical need for a monitoring service of Japanese home broadcasts.

Dear Dr. Leigh:

We have, as you know, been receiving from the FOBS transcripts of both the Japanese short wave broadcasts beamed at this country and, at such times during the year as they can be heard, standard Japanese broadcasts intended for home consumption. These transcripts are of particular interest and value in that they indicate the different Japanese propaganda lines and often, though perhaps unintentionally, they contain intelligence which when combined with material from other sources contributes substantially to the political and economic intelligence now available on Japan.

Since the FBIS is the only American agency engaged in monitoring Japanese home broadcasts, it is of considerable importance to our work that this service be continued and, if possible, extended so that the broadcasts can be monitored throughout the entire year.

COMPOSITE SUBJECT GUIDE
of J. C. S. Intercepts
Made by HANWELL OFFICE

These intercepts from broadcasts in Japanese and fourteen other languages originate in Tokyo and in Japanese-controlled stations throughout the occupied areas. They are monitored in Portland, Oregon, and are translated into English there and in San Francisco. They occupy from 175 to 300 pages daily. The data have been extracted from December 20, 1941 to the present time.

These thousands of items are arranged on cards with the date of the broadcast, the language in which it was given, and the station from which it originated. Whether the Japanese-language broadcasts were banned for home or overseas consumption is also being noted.

The data are arranged under two headings: Economic and Social and Political. Each of the two main divisions is broken down into many sub-headings. Under Economic are Agriculture, Industry, Communications, Transportation, Finance, and Products. Under Social and Political, there are about fifty sub-headings.

Furthermore, each item is arranged geographically under its appropriate region. There is material from Burma, China (including Manchuria, Korea and Formosa as well as the newly occupied areas), East Indies, French Indo-China, Japan Proper, Malaya, the Philippines, and Thailand.

All the extracts have been copied verbatim, though sometimes bracketed, and without comment.

This office has also compiled various "Assemblages", gathering all the material on particular subjects from the Index: such as "Organizations in Occupied China," "Times to the News from the Philippines, Burma, and Occupied China," "Japanese Coercion of Chinese Residents in Japanese-occupied Areas."

This Index, a useful tool, is available to all branches of the Service. Its value for background study for current news is obvious.

Unfortunately, with the present office force we cannot undertake to do the clerical work in connection with any research made with this Index except on request from our own office in Washington.

The following page show in detail the entire scope of the Index and the List of Assemblages made in response to requests from the Washington Office of OSS.

SUBJECT: FCC listing of radio operators of foreign extraction

1. There follows an analysis of the time and effort expended by the License Division of FCC in preparing the lists of radio operators of presumed foreign nationality for our use.

Time spent

Machine sorting of 140,000 IBM cards.....	10
Extracting, sorting, transporting, from building to building, etc., 4,000 individuals' files.....	13
Elimination of each file and listing required data.....	30
Recalling 4,000 individuals' files.....	6
Supervision and supplemental listing from other files not machine carded and miscellaneous.....	1
<hr/>	<hr/>
Total.....	60

2. Mr. J. D. Biddle, who gave me these figures at my request, points out that no actual record of the expended time at the time the project was initiated, consequently the above figures are estimates by the various individuals in his agency who took part in the project.

3. Since this, in my opinion, represents a major contribution by the FCC, willingly and freely given on my verbal request, I recommend that a letter similar to the attached draft be sent by Col. Boulton to Chairman Fly of the FCC, thanking him for his cooperation.

Dear General Donovan:

According to the language of the 1946 Appropriation Act which provided funds for the operation of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, none of these funds may be spent beyond sixty days after the cessation of hostilities. The Bureau of the Budget has defined the date when hostilities ceased as August 14, 1945, so our present legal status is such that we cannot continue our monitoring activities beyond October 14, 1945.

Shortly after September 5, the House Appropriation Committee will review the question of whether this sixty day limitation should be removed from our appropriation language. If the decision of this Committee is unfavorable, FBIS will proceed to demobilize during the latter part of September. Discontinuance of monitoring activities at this time will result in the elimination of a most important source of intelligence from Russian occupied Europe, Middle East and all parts of the Far East.

The above is merely for your information so that the officials in your agency making use of our intercepts will be prepared for the possible discontinuance of this service.

Yours very truly,

MEMORANDUM FOR GENERAL DUNCAN

SUBJECT: Federal Broadcast Intelligence Service.

I am attaching a memorandum giving details of the services performed by FBIS and the reaction of our departmental branches to the proposed curtailment.

To my mind it would be nationally shortsighted in these critical days to curtail any part of this service. It is my impression that FBIS has done a good job. Such monitoring is an essential part of national intelligence.

Actually what is involved is the difference between 1944-45/$1,344,763 and 1945-46/$1,168,000.

I recommend that you support FBIS by a strong statement of the value of the service in its entirety, and an expression of the short-sightedness of curtailing an activity of such obvious intelligence value. Particularly is this true since broadcasting abroad is a governmental instrument to which we should always be alert.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

9 May 1945

MEMORANDUM FOR GENERAL MAGRUDER:

SUBJECT: Federal Broadcast Intelligence Service.

The Federal Broadcast Intelligence Service is concerned exclusively with broadcast material, as opposed to point-to-point traffic:

At present, OSS receives from FBIS:

- (1) 90 copies of the "Daily Report". This was until the present been composed of a selection of broadcasts from enemy and liberated countries. Much of the European material is received from the British MOI in Enland and in Cairo. Starting immediately the European section of this report will be composed largely of material from Russia and the Russian orbit.
- (2) 60 copies of the "Bi-weekly Report". These are edited reports dealing exclusively with the Far East, and are compiled from material monitored by FBIS in Guam, Hawaii and Portland, and from British sources in India and elsewhere.
- (3) The "C" wire. This is a teletype service dealing exclusively with Latin America. FBIS sends one copy of this to CID daily by messenger.
- (4) The "A" wire. This is a teletype service dealing with all types of foreign broadcast material exclusive of Latin America. It contains about twice as many words as the daily report, and includes most of the material afterwards summarized in the Daily Report. No one now operating our machine on a 24-hour basis, producing four copies.

If the plans in the attached letter are carried out, the effects on the above services will be as follows:

- (1) Far East coverage will be telescoped to the maximum.
- (2) European coverage will be materially lessened, and will cease altogether about 31 December.
- (3) Latin American coverage will continue as at present until 31 December, and then terminate.

A survey of the branches using this material in OSS reveals the following:

- (1) All branches using Far East material are anxious to continue receiving it.
- (2) R&A is the only user of the Latin American or "C" wire material, and has already gone on record as definitely desiring its continuance.
- (3) As regards the European material:
 - (a) MO is no longer interested in it.
 - (b) SI is very anxious to have it continued.
 - (c) X-2 is not interested.
 - (d) R&A varies within its sub-divisions as to the extent of its interest. Almost every section makes use of the material to some extent, and the variation may be said to extend from lukewarm, in the Western European political sub-division, to a very nearly enthusiastic interest in it in the USSR and Eastern European divisions.
- (4) FN is anxious to have all monitoring continued.

Our radio monitoring stations at Bellmore and Rosedale have been devoted almost entirely to code broadcasts, but lately the Bellmore station has been listening to voice transmissions from Switzerland. If, after the 1B1S decision to monitor short-wave broadcasts originating in Europe and Africa, it should become desirable for OSS to monitor some of these transmissions, our stations are equipped to do so at any time. It would not be possible for them to monitor medium and long-wave broadcasts.

Director's Office

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
WASHINGTON 25 D. C.

APR 27 1945

The Director
Office of Strategic Services
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Sir:

The Director of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service of this Commission has completed a tentative analysis of the service which this organization will be able to render during the approaching fiscal year, 1945-46.

As you are no doubt aware, the FBIS monitors, translates and delivers to various federal offices and agencies, including your own, news and intelligence broadcast by radio transmitters of foreign countries. Since this organization exists solely to supply the radio news and intelligence needs of other agencies, it must depend on these agencies for advice as to what the service should be.

You will note from the Proposed Plan of Operations, copies of which are attached, that the appropriations act now in Congress is expected to provide for 1945-46 a smaller amount of money than was available to FBIS for the current fiscal year. The contemplated reduction in funds will necessitate a substantial reduction in the service available to your agency.

It is my understanding that the plan of operations set forth in the attached memorandum will, if it goes into effect, introduce the following principal changes in service rendered to your agency:

1. Virtually no intelligence derived from shortwave broadcasts originating in Europe or Africa will be made available after June 30, 1945, or after cessation of hostilities in Europe (which ever may be the later date).

2. The special files of broadcast material now prepared in London for Psychological Warfare Branch and Psychological Warfare Division will be discontinued June 30, 1945.

3. Virtually no intelligence derived from European radio (whether short, medium or long wave) will be made available after December 31, 1945.

4. There will be no monitoring of the Farber Commission until after December 31, 1945, and consequently no intelligence from those sources which will be made available after that date.

It will be very much appreciated if you will have the attached plan studied as it relates to your agency's need for radio time and intelligence, and will advise me as to the desirability of alterations in the proposed service. It is most important for this Commission to know at an early date whether you may wish to urge the continuation or increase of any service we have planned to terminate or reduce. The requests for appropriation for the fiscal year 1945-46 were intended to make possible only the kind and amount of service which the offices and agencies had at that time indicated they would have need of after the cessation of hostilities. If it should now or later be made clear that services will be required which is substantially in excess of that contemplated at the time the request was prepared, this Commission will consider the feasibility of entering a supplemental request for an increase in appropriation.

Very sincerely yours,

Paul A. Carter

MEMORANDUM for Information

FROM: Charles S. Hyndman, Director

SUBJECT: Proposed Plan of Operations, fiscal year 1945-46, of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service of the Federal Communications Commission.

1. Action to date in Congress makes it virtually certain that the funds available for FBIS during 1945-46 will be substantially less than the amount available for 1944-45.

2. The estimates which were submitted to Congress in the request for appropriation were based on the following assumptions:

a. That coverage of Far East broadcasts would be developed to the maximum.

b. That coverage of European broadcasts would be continued as at present until the termination of hostilities in Europe, immediately thereafter would be greatly reduced, and by six months after the armistice would cease altogether unless there should be more evidence than was available at the time the estimates were made that departments and agencies have need for continuance of the European coverage.

c. That coverage of Latin American broadcasts would continue as at present until approximately December 31, 1945 and then cease unless further evidence of need for continuance of the coverage should be provided.

It was recognized at the time the estimates were prepared that if hostilities in Europe should continue beyond June 30, or if coverage of European or Latin American broadcasts should be continued beyond December 31, a supplemental appropriation might be required.

3. The following statement of plans for 1945-46 is necessarily tentative. It is our present best judgment as to what the offices, departments and agencies using this service will want us to do with the available make the monitoring available to FBIS; on the incorporation of DDC in providing editorial services; and on the availability of any radio-teletype services. This file, as long as it continues, may be expected to provide Singapore Domes transmissions, several local Chinese Home Service negotiations, Malay and Thai mediumwave, and bulletins brought in Indonesian Malay to the Netherlands East Indies.

f. Far East broadcast material will continue to be made available to agencies in Washington by teletype service (the New), by a daily mimeographed publication (Daily Report), by the mimeographed Radio Report on the Far East (appearing every two weeks), by occasional mimeographed special reports, and by mail or messenger distribution of copy of particular interest to a particular department or agency.

5. Plans for European broadcast monitoring services in 1945-46

a. European coverage and service will continue essentially as at present until June 30, 1945 and beyond that time until there may be a formal armistice or a virtual cessation of hostilities in Europe. Effective June 30, or upon the cessation of hostilities at a later date, there will be a substantial reduction in coverage and service.

b. Effective July 1, 1945, or upon the subsequent cessation of hostilities, monitoring of European voice broadcasts in Washington will cease. This will virtually put an end to the monitoring of European and African shortwave broadcasts, whether directed to North or South America, Europe, Asia, or elsewhere. These transmissions have been monitored at Washington since the establishment of FBIS. A limited amount of monitoring will still be retained in FBIS by assignment of monitors to editorial positions and it will be possible to take occasional European shortwave broadcasts of outstanding importance. It is unlikely, however, that any fixed schedules for monitoring European voice broadcasts will be maintained. A limited amount of Morse code, principally Tass agency transmissions from Moscow, will continue to be monitored in Washington.

c. The special services supplied to United States and United Nations' authorities in Europe will cease June 30, 1945 or upon a subsequent armistice. These services involve mainly the preparation of reports and special files of text for SHAEF, PWB and PWD, and various embassies and legations.

d. A daily file of significant broadcast material BDC in England will continue to be sent to Washington 1945. It is expected that this will average about 15 will be carried by Army radio-teletype circuit. The filing important broadcast material from London to funds. It is distributed at this time in order to give the users of this service foreknowledge of changes in service which may take place, and to enable them to recommend alternative plans. Distribution of these plans is invited.

4. Plans for Far East broadcast monitoring service to 1948-49

a. The station at Portland, Oregon, will be continued. It will monitor all shortwave broadcasts from the Far East which can be heard at Portland with dependable reception. Full texts of voice programs and of some transmissions in Morse code will be made at Portland and sent to Washington by teletype over leased wire. Copy will go by teletype to CPT in San Francisco and to such other agencies in San Francisco as may require it. Copy now supplied by mail from Portland will continue to be supplied. Romanized Japanese Morse (Romaji) code will continue to be sent to Washington for translation.

b. The Kauai Post (Hawaiian Islands) will be enlarged and will monitor all Far Eastern shortwave broadcasts not dependably heard in Portland. For parts of the year a limited amount of medium-wave broadcasts may also be monitored in Kauai. Full texts of voice programs and of some transmissions in code will be prepared in Kauai and sent by army radio-teletype circuit and leased wire to Washington. Occasional bulletin items may be sent by commercial circuit if that method of communication is found to be much quicker. Copy of Kauai monitoring will continue to be made available to agencies desiring it in Honolulu and in San Francisco.

c. The West Pacific Post, now located on the island of Guam, will be continued and expanded sufficiently to enable it to prepare full texts of all important medium-wave broadcasts heard there and not duplicated in shortwave broadcasts. Text will be filed by army radio-teletype and leased wire to Washington (with drop copy in Honolulu and San Francisco) but it is unlikely that the Army will supply facilities for more than 5,000 words daily for several months and improbable that it will ever carry more than a daily average of 10,000 words from the West Pacific Post. Additional copy will be airmailed to Washington and other points.

d. At present it is uncertain whether any additional posts will be established in the West Pacific. Whether monitoring will be undertaken in the Philippines or at other points will depend on the wishes of theatre authorities and additional posts can be established under the expected appropriation only if some joint-staffing arrangement is worked out.

e. The present file from New Delhi, now averaging approximately 2,000 words daily, is expected to continue. This will depend however on the continuance of monitoring by the British Government or other agency at this point (or elsewhere in that part of the world) and willingness to Union cable will be discontinued June 30, or at the time of the armistice. The file from London will make available, under discontinuation, the most significant European news item broadcastages.

The present file from Cairo, now averaging approximately 12,500 words daily, is expected to continue. This will depend, however, on the continuance of monitoring by the British Government at this post, cooperation of OWI in providing editorial service, and the availability of Army radioteletype service. This file, as long as it continues, may be expected to provide substantial coverage of the Balkans, Eastern Europe, and Britain.

European material will be brought over from London and Cairo and continue to be distributed in the Daily Report until the end of December, 1945. It is uncertain whether it will be possible to continue throughout the year distribution of the European material by teletype (A wire) as at present. The discontinuance of European monitoring will necessarily result in the immediate termination of the service which serves OWI in New York.

6. Plans for Latin American broadcast monitoring service in 1945-46:

a. The monitoring of Latin American broadcasts is now done in Washington, and this will continue as at present until December 31, 1945, when it is expected to terminate. While it continues, this service will provide coverage of one hundred to one hundred fifty transmissions from Latin American stations, yielding approximately 15,000 words daily in monitors' summaries and textual material.

b. As long as it is monitored, Latin American broadcast material will continue to be distributed by teletype service (A wire) and by mail as at present. It is uncertain whether or not the Latin American personal intelligence items will continue to be carried in the Daily Report.

7. As stated above, offices, departments and agencies are requested to advise the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service as to the consequences for their operations of the proposed curtailment of service, and to recommend alternative actions. Further information concerning the implications of this memorandum can be obtained from G. Ellis Porter, Chief Editor of FBIS, Federal Communications Commission, Extension 138.
