

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

OFFICE OF DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

Honorable James H. Douglas
Secretary of the Air Force
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Mr. Douglas:

For nearly four years Brigadier General Donald D. Flickinger, USAF, Assistant Commander, ARDC, for Bio-Astronautics, has worked very closely with this Agency on several high priority projects. In each case Gen. Flickinger has made significant contributions and the success these projects have enjoyed has been due in large measure to his outstanding efforts.

In the first of these activities, Gen. Flickinger was instrumental in providing sound technical guidance with regard to problems, techniques, and equipment required in directing our intelligence efforts concerning aero-medical science. Additionally, he was of major assistance in the selection and assignment to this activity of exceptionally well qualified specialists in the field. His continued activity and interest in this program is demonstrated by his participation in a number of equipment modifications and improvements, some of which represent a marked advance in this vital development field.

His advice in the planning stage of a more recent project, with which you are familiar, has been of inestimable worth in enabling us to evaluate program emphasis early enough to pay practical dividends.

General Flickinger has not only made distinct and positive contributions to these undertakings which are of great importance to our national security, but he has also done this while creating a large circle of friends among the people with whom he has worked. I believe him to be an exceptionally able general officer with great promise for the future within the Air Force, and I look forward to the pleasure of a continued association with him on activities of mutual concern between the Air Force and Central Intelligence Agency.

I would be particularly appreciative were a copy of this letter to be made available for General Flickinger's official personnel records.

Sincerely yours,

C. P. CABELL

DRAFT

Approved For Release 2001/08/15 : CIA-RDP33-02415A000100390063-8

ER-10-9565

Honorable James H. Douglas
Secretary of the Air Force
Washington 25, D.C.

Dear Mr. Douglas:

For nearly four years Brigadier General Donald D. Flickinger, USAF, Assistant Commander, ARDC, for Bio-Astronautics, has worked very closely with this Agency on several high priority projects. In each case Gen. Flickinger has made significant contributions and the success these projects have enjoyed has been due in large measure to his outstanding efforts.

In the first of these activities, General Flickinger was instrumental in providing sound technical guidance with regard to problems, techniques, and equipment required in directing our intelligence efforts concerning aero-medical science. Additionally, he was of major assistance in the selection and assignment to this activity of exceptionally well qualified specialists in the field. His continued activity and interest in this program is demonstrated by his participation in a number of equipment modifications and improvements, some of which represent a marked advance in this vital development field.

His advice in the planning stage of a more recent project, with which you are familiar, has been of inestimable worth in enabling us to evaluate program emphasis early enough to pay practical dividends.

General Flickinger has not only made distinct and positive contributions to these undertakings which are of great importance to our national security, but he has also done this while creating a large circle of friends among the people with whom he has worked. I believe him to be an exceptionally able general officer with great promise for the future within the Air Force, and I look forward to the pleasure of a continued association with him on activities of mutual concern between the Air Force and Central Intelligence Agency.

I would be particularly appreciative were a copy of this letter to be made available for General Flickinger's official personnel records.

Sincerely yours,

C. P. CABELL
General, USAF

Approved For Release 2001/08/15 : CIA-RDP33-02415A000100390063-8