3. Such funds are clearly operational funds of CIA, and are utilized to defray its expenses. In consequence, they are not an item for inclusion in a personal income tax return. Should any question be raised by the Internal Revenue Bureau or other appropriate authority, concerning these funds, it should be brought to the attention of the Assistant Director for National Estimates and, in turn, this office. Were such inquiry to be made, it would probably be necessary for this Agency to make a full disclosure, through established liaison channels, to the authority concerned. If this risk is considerable, or likely to increase, it may be advisable to pursue this matter further with the Finance Division in order to develop a better technique.

4. Should you have any further questions in this matter, we will be glad to assist you.
