III. A Pamphlet on Elections in the USSR, Published in the Urdu Language in Karachi, Pakistan

Ali Ahmad Khan, Choudhry Elections in the USSR published by Maktab-i-Charagh-i-Rah, Karachi at the Kaleem Press, Price: 3 annas, 32 p., in Urdu

Summary of Contents:

In the foreword, the author briefly traces the rise of communism, and concludes that communism has become embodied in a new kind of police state which thrives on a new type of imperialism.

Elections in the USSR are reviewed, with emphasis on the fact that they are a mockery, not free elections. This is antithetic to Islam.

The booklet describes control by Russia's one-party system over every phase of life, including art and literature. Again attention is directed to the conflict with Islam.

The Russian constitutional clause, "freedom of the press", is explained with the conclusion that "if this is freedom of the press then we can say without any hesitation that no government in the world has ever imposed any restriction on the press". The section on the press explains in detail the part a free press should play in national elections.

The author then discusses the "right of nomination" for Soviet elections, pointing out that a handful of men control elections, including nominations for even the lowest offices.
