In 1957 the Soviets exported, among other nonferrous items, aluminum, tin, gold, antimony, lead, platinum, zinc, magnesium, and asbestos to the Free World. It is presumed that these commodities also will be available for export to the Free World in 1958. The 1957 tin exports were probably of Chinese origin. In 1957, exports of aluminum were about 30,000 metric tons valued at $17 million; and tin exports were about 10,000 metric tons at $21 million.
