Senator Jackson dropped by the office and asked what was new. I mentioned the latest information on Soviet Hen House radar. We also discussed the recent move by Sadat to oust Soviet military personnel from Egypt. In response to a question from the Senator I told him I thought the Egyptian move was based in large part on the fact that the Egyptian's had grown weary of having the Soviet's constantly looking over their shoulder. We also talked about whether Soviet withdrawal if it is complete will make the Egyptian's more or less firm in their dealings with other countries.
