THOMAS D. GALL

Thomas D. Gall, Administrative Aide at CIA

Thomas D. Gall, 45, a senior administrative officer at the Central Intelligence Agency, died Monday at Georgetown University Hospital of complications following surgery.

A native of Hillsboro, Ohio, Mr. Gall attended Ohio State University and worked for a public accounting firm in Hillsboro before coming here 13 years ago.

He served as an infantry officer in the Army from 1940 to 1948, including tours of duty in the Pacific campaigns. At the time of his death, Mr. Gall was a lieutenant colonel in the active reserve.

Besides his wife, Connie, and a son, Thomas D., jr., of the home address, 7506 New Market drive, Bethesda, he leaves his parents, Mr. Thurman L. Gall and Mrs. Tressia V. Nye, a brother and three half-brothers, all of Ohio.

Services will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Bethesda Christian Church, 6050 Wisconsin avenue, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

The family requests that expressions of sympathy be in the form of contributions to the Montgomery County Heart Association.
