National U.F.O. Probe Slated

CPYRGHT Denver, Oct. 6 (AP) - The Denver

Post, in a copyrighted story, said today it has learned the University of Colorado will head a national program to investigate and evaluate sightings of unidentified objects.

The Post said the official announcement is expected from Dr. Harold Brown, Air Force Secretary, tomorrow. The story said the new approach appeared to be in response to criticism from Congress and the public regarding the handling of strange objects in the sky.

It is expected the new project, financed by a special appropriation, will be headed by Dr. Edward U. Condon, internationally known theoretical physicist at the University of Colorado. He will direct a team authorized to provide quick, in-depth investigation of selected U.F.O. sightings. The team will provide uncensored evaluation of the incidents.
