2. [redacted] Bob Gants, in the office of Representative Ralph Regula, called to say Dennis King, a student intern who will be in their office a short time, is doing some work for the Congressman on the Agency. He merely wanted to introduce King to me and tell me the reasons why he would be contacting us.

Later in the day I received a call from King who said he was interested in any information we could give him about our development and research capabilities and our relationships with the Congress. I told King I assumed he was interested in following up on the Congressman's interest in the amount of economic research material which the Agency was making available publicly and he confirmed this was the case. I told King I would pull together some material on this and some of our people would be in touch with him.
