1. The proposed series of which the reference was the first is useful for the first stated purpose. However, in order for such material to be useful for the second purpose, such papers will have to be recast in language of a much more elementary nature for readers who are, for the most part, quite unsophisticated about the significance of the development in the party line.

2. Further, it is suggested that wherever Communist publications are used to support such papers, more extensive extract quotations from the sources be used to authenticate the point, rather than using summarization of such Communist sources too much.
