The Haldane Society

This society was one of the most important of the national affiliates of the IADL until its disaffiliation in late 1958 over dissatisfaction with the IADL's attitude towards Soviet action in Hungary. Originally (early 1930's) a forum of Labor Party lawyers, the Haldane Society was taken over by its Communist members until it became practically a Communist front. This caused a loss of members from 520 in 1948 until only 188 remained in 1959, at which time the non-Communists, led by Stuart Shields, would have left if the society had not agreed to disaffiliate.
