Dear Bill:

I have not written before now as I am trying to see how much we can get together before September 7. Wright Field has said they wish to have someone out here at that time. It is making us step right along as we are trying to do in a couple of weeks what other people have been attempting to do in a like number of years.

We will have all of the charts and curves on the alternator by then but I do not know that we can have a sleeve engine hitched up to the alternator by that time. We have to proceed at this stage of the game on the basis that in spite of jets and turbines, gas engines are practical and do not have to be designed from scratch.

I shall write you in approximately a week.

Kindest personal regards,

President
