Mr. Janney and myself have carefully considered whether the Agency should participate in the Educational Program for Federal Officials at Mid-Career offered at Princeton and believe that the courses offered may be of significant value to certain Agency employees of a real scholarly bent. Initially, I would suggest we give priority consideration to nominees from the Intelligence or Science and Technology Directorates. After we have a more recent critique from one student, we will all be in a better position, of course, to determine if the course should remain in our external training "stable".

2 - See any use for this in OSI or elsewhere in DISA?

3 - I can think of 1 or 2 people in OSI & several in OWI who could benefit from this but it does not strike me as being quite as valuable as the "Education for Public Administration" program

This course looks better than most. The faculty is outstanding and I am sure that DDO officers would have an excellent year at this program. However, as you know, the cover problem automatically excludes a large portion of DDO officers and therefore it is doubtful that our Directorate could make much use of this program. To repeat, however, it looks like a fine program and undoubtedly would be beneficial to most Agency officers.
