

STATINTL

CAREER EDUCATION AWARD WINNERS

STATINTL

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] were granted Career Education Awards by the National Institute of Public Affairs for graduate study during the 1967 - 1968 academic year. [REDACTED] a Digital Computer Systems Analyst in the Office of Computer Services, is studying at Stanford University; [REDACTED] a Systems Analyst in the Support Services Staff, is attending Cornell University; and Mr. [REDACTED] an Intelligence Officer in the Office of Current Intelligence, is attending Indiana University.

STATINTL

STATINTL

STATINTL

The Career Education Awards Program permits winners to engage in special study programs at one of eight outstanding participating universities without adhering to the restrictions of an established curriculum. The recipients are selected by the Institute on the basis of their exceptional ability, outstanding performance, and high potential for future leadership in government.