1. Informed General Weckerling of my recent talks with [redacted] and General Partridge on having [redacted] join the Agency.

25X1A9a

2. Mentioned to [redacted] and later to DCI at the Deputies' meeting, the desirability of a statute authorizing CIA to have general counsel competent to represent it in Court. There is no existing statute and by a strict interpretation of the law we could be required to rely on the Department of Justice for representation. The [redacted] case indicates the type of conflicts of interest that might arise. Colonel White made a note about this.

3. Revised the factual memorandum respecting the [redacted] case with [redacted], and subsequently with DCI.

4. Indicated to DCI my view that [redacted] was sufficiently important that it should not be shown to the President until O/NE had adequate time to prepare a commentary.

6. Spoke to [redacted] and stated that I would cooperate in any effort to insure that his reports were transmitted freely to the Intelligence Offices. He had already spoken on this with [redacted] who suggested [redacted] continue to transmit such reports directly to me. I secured [redacted] agreement that these reports might be disseminated to the divisions and treated in a relatively routine manner. Passed this on
