I. Catalogued and temporarily listed entries.

Subjects were selected or formulated (for their possible suitability to CIG interests) from the chronological and subject arrangements of catalogued and shelved entries. Some cross-reference subjects are listed for the sake of the general picture but there is much material on hand under almost every heading; in addition, there is considerable material not yet catalogued.

A. By chronological periods in Russian history.

1. Pre-1914.

Virtually all subjects listed under paragraph B have many materials especially pertinent to the pre-1914 period.

Cossacks
Gosudarstvennaia Duma (1906-1907)
Lena Gold Field Strike, 1912
Revolution of 1905
Russo-Japanese War

2. 1914-1917.

Almost all general subjects which are pertinent to the 1914-1917 period are represented as well as many others peculiar to it.

3. 1917 Revolution.

VI. Recent Acquisitions.

A. Summaries from Annual Report, October, 1946.

From the following information contained in the Annual Report, October 1946, of the Hoover Library and Research Institute for the Stanford General Secretary's Office, one may picture the type and degree of collecting done annually. If one will multiply this amount of materials by a good many years almost as bountiful in acquisitions, one may imagine the wealth of the Hoover Library.

China:

Numerous documents, serials and newspapers originating in or relating to Japan, China, Manchuria and the Philippines. Eighteen publications issued between 1932 and 1941 dealing with the social history of China.

Denmark:

Books, pamphlets, newspapers of the occupation period, including files of 24 illegal papers and one of two copies of the original report of a leader of an underground unit.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

France:

Collected by the French Committee of the Hoover Library and other Hoover Library agents and representatives. Many books on France before and following the Armistice with Germany; collection of testimonies of French deportees to German concentration camps; complete file of the clandestine paper, "Forces Francaises"; official documents of the German military government in occupied France, handbills and broadsides addressed to the French people in 1940 by Marshall Petain; type-written copies of reports by various Maquis leaders, authenticated copies of documents from the archives of the COMAC (Comite Militaire de l'Action Clandestine), authenticated copies from the papers of the Commission Militaire Nationale, Conseil National de la Resistance.

Germany:

Hoover Library agents collected thirty six cases of books and pamphlets from the Nazi House of the Press. Sixteen large boxes collected by Ernest J. Cramer during his military service in Germany and concerned chiefly with Germany in World War II, National Socialism and colonial problems.

India:

Much material on Indian problems sent by members of "Servants of India Society" and the Indian Council of World Affairs.

Japan:

Sent by Tokyo Office of Hoover Library, over ninety boxes of materials--books, pamphlets, government documents, files of serials and newspapers. Especially noticed was a Japanese "Summary of Military Operations", classified secret and ordered to be destroyed.

Latin America:

Books on Mexico's Foreign Relations, books and pamphlets published in Latin American Countries and dealing with revolutionary movements in those countries.

Poland:

Many underground publications either in the original or in photostatic copies.

Russia:

D. Materials in the vault.

Much sealed material is sent to the Hoover Library on the condition that it be kept intact and not opened until a certain date. This material is kept in a special vault and the instructions as to date of opening are strictly followed. Each month in accordance with instructions by the donor, new material is opened and made available for research.

VII. Maps and charts.

The Hoover Library contains very few separate Soviet maps and almost none since before World War II; at present in the way of map and chart materials, there is little more than those found in books or periodicals or in Soviet Atlases.

VIII. Posters and pamphlets.

On hand are hundreds of Soviet propaganda and teaching posters from both pre-World War II and World War II periods. They are not catalogued. Innumerable propaganda pamphlets, many also uncatalogued, represent all periods of modern Russian development.

IX. Slides and films (35 mm.)

The following contain miscellaneous scenes, wharves, buildings, factories, roads etc.

1. On the General Plan for the Reconstruction of Moscow, 396 views.
2. The Caucasus, 66 views.
3. Eastern Siberia, 73 views.
4. The Crimea, 64 views.
5. The First Soviet Metro, 76 views.
6. The Ukraine, 58 views.
