France-China

A Western news service reports that a syndicate of 18 French banks signed an agreement yesterday to lend China $7 billion, possibly the largest foreign loan China has ever negotiated. The loan, negotiated within the framework of a trade agreement France and China signed in December, is intended to finance Chinese purchases of French industrial goods and services. The interest rate on the loan--between 7.25 and 7.5 percent--is the lowest permitted under an agreement among the Western industrial powers that limits subsidized export finance. A French spokesman said the loan could cover the purchase--currently under negotiation--of two pressurized-water nuclear power reactors built by a French company under license from Westinghouse.
