WORKERS GET MORE FOOD

700 GRAMS OF BREAD DAILY -- Rad, No 58, 9 Mar 50

Industrial workers now receive 700 grams of bread per day, and members of their immediate families receive 300 grams of bread each.

In 1946, according to the guaranteed supply, Yugoslav miners with R-1a ration cards were allotted bread, meat, fats, sugar, and cocoa amounting to 2,259 calories per day, in 1947 to 4,109 calories, in 1948 to 4,171 calories, and in 1949 to 4,297 calories. Industrial workers with R-1 ration cards were allotted 2,149 calories per day in 1946, 2,214 in 1947, 2,429 in 1948, and 2,590 in 1949. White-collar workers with R-2 ration cards received 1,555 calories per day in 1946, 1,608 in 1947, 1,816 in 1948, and 1,976 in 1949.

According to the 1948 law on the guaranteed supply, miners receive 1,000 grams of bread per day, 1,500 grams of fats per month, 7,500 grams of meat per month, 3,200 grams of edible paste products per month, 1,000 grams of sugar per month, and 200 grams of coffee per month. Before they go to work, miners are given free of charge the following items by the federal government: 300 grams of bread, 30 grams of fats, 150 grams of meat, 50 grams of flour, 100 grams of onions, 25 grams of cheese, and 10 grams of fruit.

At the end of 1948, further improvements in miners' nutrition came about with the formation of workers' restaurants in mines, which increased the quota of meat per miner to 8,500 grams of meat per month, 1,700 grams of sugar per month, etc. Miners also are guaranteed to receive six additional kilograms of wheat flour per month.
