2. The majority of these individuals are members of the Communist Party and several are employees of the Rumanian Ministry of Interior.

3. [redacted] 25X1

- The members of the team were all aware of the higher standard of living which prevailed in the Western countries but refused to discuss this subject.
- With regard to politics in general, distrust appeared prevalent throughout the group, and each individual regarded his fellow members with suspicion.
- In their contacts with foreigners, they were scarcely amiable and often introduced themselves under false names.
- The Rumanian team members strove to give the impression that their opinions were their own and free from control.
- The members of the team had no foreign money. However, they gratefully accepted gifts, particularly medicines (antibiotics).
