TAB H

ALLOWANCES (QUARTERS, LIVING, EQUALIZATION, TRANSFER, EDUCATION, SEPARATION, ETC.)

This problem can be eliminated in the case of career agents and contract agents by adjustments in their contracts. The tendency has prevailed to equate contract personnel with staff personnel, with the result that all have tended toward the maximum staff entitlements and the accompanying staff-type accountings. Other means of granting allowances are available and contracts for career and contract agents can be so written as to eliminate staff-type accountings if the contracting components are willing to forego staff-type allowance benefits. This change need not work a hardship on the person under contract.

COMMENTS (Number each comment to show from whom to whom. Draw a line across column after each comment.)

Mr. Bissell has asked the Agent Panel to work out means of reducing the administrative workload connected with the support of agent personnel. The Chairman of the Panel has asked me to work with Mr. [redacted] on this matter. Attached is a suggested draft of a preliminary report to be made to the Panel next week, preparatory to the first report which the Panel will make to Mr. Bissell on 15 March. When you have had time to study the proposed draft we can get together to discuss any changes you feel should be made. In the interest of time, some administrative procedures have been suggested without working them out to completion. This can be done as the study progresses.
