THE VILLAGE VOICE

7 Dec 1972 Approved For Release 2001/03/04 ~ CIA-RDP80-P1601 Repairempore DeDiteing life press: you, Bill. President Subarray 'Exclusive to the CIA'

by William Worthy

In April 1961, a few days after the unsuccessful Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, Allen Dulles, at that time the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, met in off-the-record session with the American Society of Newspaper Editors at their annual convention.

Given the Cuba intelligence, by then obviously faulty, that had entered into Washington's rosy advance calculations, he inevitably was pressed to tell: "Just what are the sources of the CIA's information about other countries?"

One source. Dulles replied, was U. S. foreign correspondents who are "debriefed" by the CIA on their return home. The usual practice is to hole up in a hotel room for several days of intense bounds China. He thought for a interrogation.

Much of the debriefing, I've learned over the years, is agreed to freely and willingly by individual newsmen untroubled by the special use of minority-group world's image of them as spies. In at least one case, as admitted to me by the Latin-American specialist on one of our mass-circulation weekly newsmagazines, the debriefing took place very reluctantly after his initial refusal to cooperate was vetoed by his superiors. But depending on the particular foreign crises or obsessions at the moment, some of the eager sessions with the CIA debriefers bring handsome remuneration. Anyone recently returned from the erupted Philippines can probably name his price.

Despite its great power and its general unaccountability, the CIA dreads exposes. Perhaps because of a "prickly rebel" family reputation stretching over three generations, the CIA has never approached me about any of the 48 countries I have visited, including four (China, Hungary, Cuba, and North Vietnam) that had been placed off-limits by the State Department. But the secret agency showed intense interest in my travels to those "verboten" lands. In fact in those dark days, Eric Sevareid once told me that | of governmental ties, I relayed gatherer, differed with brother Foster Dulles, the Calvinist diplo-mat about the wisdom of the self-¹ ate" with spy agencies, whether defeating travel bans.

Years later, I learned that the U. S. "vice-consul" in Budapest who twice came to my hotel to demand (unsuccessfully) my passport as I transited Hungary en route home from China in 1957 was, in fact, a CIA agent operating under a Foreign Service cover. During a subsequent lecture tour, I met socially in Kansas City a man who had served his Army tour of duty in mufti, on detached service in North Africa and elsewhere with the National Security Agency. Out of curiosity I asked him what would be the "premium" price for a newsman's debriefing on out-ofmoment and then replied: "Oh, about $10,000." Out of the CIA's petty cash drawer.

My first awareness of the CIA's newsmen abroad came at the time of the 1955 Afro-Asian summit conference at Bandung, Indonesia. Through Washington sources (including Marquis Childs of the St. Louis Post Dispatch), Cliff Mackay, then editor of the Baltimore Afro-American, discovered-and told me-that the government was planning to send at least one black correspondent to "cover" the historic gathering.

The "conduit" for the expense money and "fee" was the director of a "moderate" New York-based national organization, supported by many big corporations, that has long worked against employment discrimination. The CIA cash was passed to the organization's director by a highly placed Eisenhower administration official overseeing Latin-American affairs who later became governor of a populous Middle Atlantic state, and whose brothers and family foundation have long been heavy contributors to the job opportunity organization.

Because of the serious implications for a press supposedly free Allen Dulles, the intelligence this information to the American Civil Liberties Union. I also told Theodore Brown, one of A. Philip Randolph's union associates in the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. Ted's reall about this, and they are particularly incensed at having a man of color sent to spy in their country."

Cold-war readiness to "coopermotivated by quick and easy money (I've often wondered if under-the-counter CIA payments have to be reported on income tax returns!) or spurred by a misconceived patriotism, had its precedent in World War I and in the revolutionary-counterrevolutionary aftermath. In the summer of 1920 Walter Lippmann, his wife, and Charles Merz published in the New Republic an exhaustive survey of how the New York Times had reported the first two vears of the Russian revolution. They found that on 91 occasionsan average of twice a week-Times dispatches out of Riga, Latvia, buttressed by editorials, had "informed" readers that therevolution had either collapsed or was about to collapse, while at the same time constituting a "mortal menace" to non-Communist Europe. Lippmann and his associates attributed the misleading coverage to a number of factors. Especially cited in the survey were the transcending win-thewar and anti-Bolshevik passions of Times personnel, as well as "undue intimacy" with Western intelligence agencies.

After 1959, when Fidel Castro came to power after having ousted the corrupt pro-American Batista regime, Miami became a modern-day Riga: a wild rumor factory from where Castro's "death" and imminent overthrow were repeatedly reported for several years. Both in that city of expatriates and also in Havana, 'undue intimacy'' with the CIA caused most North American reporters covering the Cuban revolution to echo and to parrot official U.S. optimism about the Bay of Pigs invasion.

In the summer of 1961, on my fourth visit to that revolutionary island, a Ministry of Telecommunications official told me of a not untypical incident shortly before the invasion. Through mercenaries and through thoroughly discredited Batistianos, the CIA was masterminding extensive sabotage inside Cuba-a policy doomed to failure not only because anti-Castro endeavors lacked a popular base, but also because kindergartens, department stores during shopping hours, and similar public places REP80-09601 R00030001 children in their classrooms an women where they shop.

On one such occasion a bom went off at 9.08 p. m. Five minute earlier, at 9.03 p.m., an ambitiou U. S. wire-service corresponde filed an "urgent press" dispate from the Western Union tel printer in his bureau office, r porting the explosion that, aw wardly for him, came five min utes after the CIA's schedule time. When that corresponde and most of his U.S. colleague were locked up for a week or ty during the CIA-directed Bay Pigs invasion and were then e pelled, many U. S. editorial wr ers were predictably indignant.

Except perhaps in Washington itself and in the United Natio delegates' lounge, the CIA department on journalism probably busier abroad than wa newsmen at home. In 1961, durin a televised interview, Walt Lippmann referred casually the CIA's bribing of forei newsmen (editors as well as t working press), especially at t time of critical elections. All ov the world governments and poli cal leaders, in power and in c position, can usually name the journalistic compatriots who a known to be or strongly suspect of being on the CIA's bounting pavroll. I believe it was Le Trotsky who once observed th anyone who engages in telligence work is always w covered sooner or later.

Even neutralist countrie learned to become distrustful U. S. newsmen. In early 196 Prince Norodom Sihanouk e pelled a black reporter after ju 24 hours. In an official statement the Ministry of Information a leged that he "is known to be n only a journalist but also an age of the CIA." In a number of Afr Asian countries, entry visas for 1 S. correspondents, particularly on a first visit, can be approve only by the prime minister e other high official.

As recently as a generation ag it would have been unthinkab for most U.S. editors, publisher newscasters, and reporters to a quiesce in intelligence d briefings, not to mention le "passive" operations. What F Murrow denounced as the col war concept of press and univers ty as instruments of foreign poli had not yet spread over the lan In the years before the Second World War, if any governme agent had dared to solicit the coseration Not La William All

Approved For Release has 2001/03/04 in CIA-mobilize mass support by killing

Approved For Release 2001/03/04°C LIA-RDP80-01601R00 Hanoi and The Cuban Specter

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS—Historians may eventually decide the most significant aspect of the Indochina war was that it never produced a superpower confrontation resembling the nuclear showdown over Cuba just ten years ago.

It may be arguable that what occurred in the Caribbean at the end of October, 1962, had a profound if indirect influence on what was to happen in Vietnam during the subsequent decade.

Looking back on events that led Chairman Khrushchev to the Cuban gamble, it is now possible to discern his growing overconfidence. After having met Mr. Kennedy in Vienna, hetold me the American President impressed him as being unable to face up to the Berlin crisis then festering.

"Kennedy is too young," he said (Sept. 8, 1961). "He lacks the authority and prestige to settle the issue correctly. He is afraid to take up that position and that is why he has introduced mobilization measures." Mr. Khrushchev gave two clues to his possible behavior although I was not shrewd enough to realize this.

He said: "If Cuba were subjected to attack, it would have every right to expect assistance from other peaceloving countries. . . We would certainly not ignore a request for assistance." He also indicated exaggerated faith in Russia's nuclear arsenal, saying it was being armed with "several" 100-megaton warheads of such destructive power as "to make would-be aggressors think twice."

Khrushchev probably didn't then contemplate the possibility that thirteen months later he would have dispatched missiles and nuclear warheads secretly to Cuba. S.D.E.C.E., the French intelligence service, reported some clues early in October and the C.I.A. established overwhelming confirmation through aerial surveyance.

The result is history. Mr. Kennedy reacted with calm toughness and sent Dean Acheson abroad to alert our allies. France's President de Gaulle told Acheson it was unnecessary to show him photographs of, the Soviet missiles "because obviously a great Government like yours would not risk war for nothing." He assured Washington of French support.

Some lesser allics suggested dismantling U.S. missile bases in Turkey to save Mr. Khrushchev's face. Several suspected what Moscow really sought was Western abandonment of Approved ToriRelease 2001/03/04:

by a U.S. naval blockade and the threat of holocaust, Khrushchev backed down

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

On Nov. 9, 1962, Mr. Kennedy told me he was "astonished" at the speed with which the Russians managed to pull their missiles out of Cuba but added that he couldn't understand why Khrushchev had gone there in the first place. If he had thought America wasn't going to fight in the heart of an area of its own vital interest (the President speculated), he surely must have assumed we weren't going to fight in Berlin. Therefore, he asked: "Why didn't he go straight for Berlin?"

On Nov. 20 the President said in another conversation that he had learned much from the terrible episode. At the start "you don't know whom to believe and whom to disbelieve. But I can do the job much better now."

The crisis produced several repercussions. Mr. Khrushchev sent a message to British Prime Minister Macmillan saying the West should not try to push Russia around on Berlin or make the mistake of thinking the Cuba showdown proved Moscow was "soft."

NATO endorsed President Kennedy's desire to increase the Alliance's conventional strength because Cuba had demonstrated that the use of such strength in a crisis area could force an advesary to be the first to explode nuclear weapons and thereby risk mas destruction.

The Russians vastly accelerated their naval building program and began to move persistently into the Mediterranean. This process coincided with dismantling of the U.S. missile sites in Turkey.

Washington promised to take nophysical action against Cuba's regime and this in turn strengthened the hand of Latin-American revolutionary movements for some time to come. De Gaulle decided he would never again allow France to be drawn into crises outside the European area and loosened French NATO ties.

This historical effect of the Cuban confrontation on Vietnam was indirect. President Kennedy certainly didn't reduce American intervention; he souped it up, But the lesson of 1962 wasn't lost. Despite U.S. attacks on Hanoi, even while Kosygin was there, or bombings right up to China, and despite the U.S. blockade of Haiphong, Moscow and Peking reacted with calculated calm.

CIA+RDR80+01601R000300010001-0

ter of nuclear war was too dangerous to contemplate. Ultimately, Cuba thus made the Vietnam crisis manageable.

STATINTL

Approved For Release 2001 103 00年: 创入-RDP80

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Kissinger's Command Is a Hot Spot

STATINT

By Jack Anderson

べ

Every day, coded messages flood into Washington from our embassies, military commands and intelligence outposts all over the world. The most urgent telegrams are funneled into Henry Kissinger's command post in the White House. Digests of overnight intelligence reports are a veto over the other's ap-irectly. Contrary to press redelivered each morning to President Nixon.

From sources with access to this intelligence flow, here are Thieu as a member of the tri-transport planes, which have some recent highlights:

about the prospects of a ing Japanese Prime Minister military aid, have had the efcease-fire in Vietnam. Yet in- Kakuei Tanaka fiercely that fect of strengthening Soviet tercepted messages indicate the Chinese would resist to that North Vietnam is prepar- the death any encroachments ing for a renewed offensive, by Russia. A CIA report on theless, that Russia wouldn't dider him to be." Our military intelligence has the secret Mao-Tanaka talks likely risk war for Syria, Iraq found no trace, however, that quotes old Mao as saying or any other Arab country. Russia has replaced the tanks China would sacrifice its own and artillery the North Viet- people to prevent Soviet domi- forts to placate Uganda's wildnamese lost in their spring of- nation. He cited the fate of his fensive. They were able last former heir apparent, Lin pear to have backfired. He has spring to sneak heavy hard-ware into South Vietnam vir- crash fleeing to Russia after become the backbone of Ugantually undetected. But the attempting a pro-Soviet coup da's economy, out of the counbest available intelligence sug- against Mao. gests that both Russia and be softening slightly on its around the world.

North Vietnam's Le Duc Tholsis charges that Israel's forays has emphasized that the Saigon | across her borders against the regime must be dismantled and Palestinian guerrillas have difficult than ever. replaced by a tripartite gov-given the Soviets a pretext for ernment dominated by neither strengthening their foothold side. But he has indicated that in Syria and Iraq. Military Saigon can choose anyone it shipment have been sent not wishes to the new government, only to Syria and Iraq but to that neither side should have the Palestinian guerrillas dipointments. The implication is ports of a Soviet "airlift" to that Hanoi would not object if Syria, however, the airlift his own purposes have failed. Saigon appointed the hated consisted of only four A typical message from our partite government.

China have cut back military Central Intelligence Agency Tanzania. He has made and shipments to North Vietnam. reports that Chinese Premier Hanoi's military preparations, Chou En-lai is still encountertherefore, may be for a lim- ing opposition inside Peking's harsh martial law upon his ited attack upon a political ruling circle. Chou's oppo- country, charging that Tanza- ma-Cuba Friendship Society, target, perhaps even Saigon it- nents are upset over his policy nia, India and even Britain are self. But no one really knows of detente with the United planning to invade his small ship with Cuba, put pressure whether the guns will be si-States, Japan and the West, country. For the sake of black on Torrijos from the left and lenced or booming when the They contend that the detente African solidarity, a host of possibly be used as the center voters go to the polls on Nov. 7. has hurt China's credibility black African leaders have for certain unspecified Cuban Soft on Thieu-Hanoi may with revolutionary for ces made pilgrimages to Uganda activites."

ceased to make regular deliv-New Offensive?---Privately, Mao's Vow--China's supreme cries. But the shipments, Henry Kissinger is optimistic ruler, Mao Tse-tung, told visit-though no more than token bonds with the Arab hotheads. The analysis concludes, never-

> African Wildman-The efman, General Idi Amin, appear to have backfired. He has try. He has made impossible Chou's Opposition-The demands upon neighboring broken promises to visiting mediators. He has imposed to placate General Amin. But arch enemy, President Thieu. Soviet Shipments-A classi- a CIA report suggests all this In the secret truce talks, fied State Department analy- attention has merely enlarged. his ego and made him more > Castro "Uncouth" - Intelligence reports acknowledge a rise in anti-U.S. feeling: throughout Latin America. But apparently Cuban Dictator Fidel Castro's attempts to exploit U.S. unpopularity for where Castro visited last year. describes the top Ecuadorean military brass as anti-U.S. but also anti-Castro. The message quotes them as calling Castro "uncouth" and "not the great leader that many people con-

Cuba-Panama Friendship-A secret CIA cable, reporting on a conversation with a Cuban intelligence officer known only as "Alfredo" quotes him as saying that "the Cuban government generally supports the PJG (Panama's military junta) and General Omar Torrijos, the head of Panama, but wants to find ways to encourage Torrijos to move further to the left. 'Alfredo' suggested that ... leftists in Panama form a Panawhich could promote friend-

© 1972, United Feature Syndicate

$

Approved For Release 2001/03/04 : CIA-RDP80-01601R000300010001-0