Approved For Release 2001/03/04 : CIA-RDP80-0160

Foreign Policy: Disquiet Cover Intelligence Setup

Following is the fifth in a series of articles exploring the Nixon Administration's style in foreign policy:

By BENJAMIN WELLES

Special to The New York Times

Mr. Nixon, it is said, has the tional intelligence estimates.
gun to decide for himself vyhat. The chairman of the board, the intelligence priorities must who is the President's representative is the Director of munity."

In addition to the C.I.A., they include the intelligence arms of the Defense, State and Justice Departments and the Atomic Energy Commission. Together they spend $3.5billion a year on strategic intelligence about the Soviet Union, Communist China and other countries that might harm the nation's security.
When tactical intelligence in Vietnam and Germany and reconnaissance by overseas commands is included, the annual figure exceeds $5-billion, it was Mr. Cline who spot certainty."

The president's representative of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say. The project of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, experts say are also builded at Cienfuegos, put and organization of the Intelligence Board, part of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, and the Intelligence Board, part of the Administration's tive on the Intelligence Board, p

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — per cent of the total, or about President Nixon has become $4-billion, about $2.5-billion of dissatisfied with the size, cost it on the strategic intelligence and loose coordination of the tributes at least 150,000 mem-Government's worldwide in bers of the intelligence staffs, telligence operations.

According to impenders of people.

his staff, he believes that the intelligence provided to help him formulate foreign policy, while occasionally excellent, is not good enough, day after nate intelligence exchanges, day, to justify its share of the budget.

Which are estimated at 200,000 poople.

Overseeing all the activities is the United States Intelligence Board, set up by secret order by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956 to coordinate intelligence exchanges, decide collection priorities, as sign collection tasks and help prepare what are known as na the intelligence priorities must who is the President's reprethe and where the money should be spent, instead of leaving it largely to the intelligence community. He has instructed his staff to survey the situation

and report back within a year,
it is hoped—with recommendations for budget cuts of as much as several hundred million dollars.

Not many years ago the Central Intelligence Agency; Howard C.
Brown Jr., an assistant general
manager at the Atomic Energy
and the other intelligence
bureaus were portrayed as an
"invisible empire" controlling.

The chamman of the board, siles, nuclear submarines airpower for the talks with kussians on the limitation
strategic arms.

"We couldn't get off
ground at the talks with
this extremely sophisticated formation base," an off
and research at the State Department; Vice Adm. Noel Gayler, head of the National
manager at the Atomic Energy
Commission, and William C.
Sullivan, a deputy director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"invisible empire" controlling foreign policy behind a veil of secrecy. Now the pendulum has swung.

The President and his aides are asid to suspect with sorgaling conglowers.

gation.

Intelligence men are aware that's the way to negotiate."

Too much intelligence has its drawbacks, some sources say, for it whets the Administration's appetite. Speaking of Henry A. Kissinger, the sought to comprehend the president's adviser on nationare said to suspect wide-spread overlapping, duplication and considerable "boon-doggling" in the secrecy-shrouded intelligence "community."

sought to comprehend the of Henry A: Kissinger, the President's advisor on national-spread overlapping, duplication of agencies. Nor, they say, has he decided how best to use their technical resources and personnel—much shrouded intelligence "community."

Fresident's advisor on national-security affairs, a Cabinet official observed: "Henry's impatient for facts."

Figure 1. Henry A: Kissinger, the President's advisor on national-security affairs, a Cabinet official observed: "Henry's impatient for facts."

Figure 2. Henry A: Kissinger, the President's advisor on national-security affairs, a Cabinet official observed: "Henry's impatient for facts."

Figure 2. Henry A: Kissinger, the President's advisor on national-security affairs, a Cabinet official observed: "Henry's impatient for facts."

In the last year Mr. Nixon policy.

sources and personnel—much of it talented—in formulating policy.

Two Cases in Point

Administration use—albeit, tardy use—of vast resources in spy satellites and reconnaissance planes to help police the Arab-Israeli cease-fire of last August is considered a case in point. Another was poor intelligence agencies. Some on future Soviet strategy have been ordered radically revised by Mr. Kissinger.

"Our knowledge of present Soviet capabilities allows Henry and others to criticize us for some sponginess about predicting future Soviet policy," an informed source contend in the last year Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger have ordered a revision in the national intelligence estimates, which are propared by the C.I.A. after consultation with the other intelligence agencies. Some on future Soviet strategy have been ordered radically revised by Mr. Kissinger.

"Our knowledge of present Soviet capabilities allows Henry and others to criticize us for some sponginess about predicting future Soviet policy," an informed source contends in the last year Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger have ordered a revision in the national intelligence estimates, which are propared by the C.I.A. after consultation with the other intelligence agencies. Some on future Soviet strategy have been ordered radically revised by Mr. Kissinger.

"Our knowledge of present soviet capabilities allows the road others to criticize us for some sponginess about predicting future Soviet policy," an informed source contends in the last year Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger have ordered a revision in the national intelligence estimates, which are propared by the C.I.A. after consultation with the other intelligence agencies. Some on future Soviet strategy have been ordered radically revised by Mr. Kissinger have ordered a revision in the national intelligence agencies. Some on future Soviet strategy have been ordered radically revised by Mr. Kissinger.

"Our knowledge of present source contends in the last year Mr. Cline who so the propagate in the ligence agencies. Some on f

Cuba, last September, suspicions, based on the an of a mother ship, plus two conspicuous barges of a 1 used only for storing a 1 lear submarine's radioac effluent, alerted the WI House. That led to inte behind-the-scenes a negotia and the President's re-warning to Moscow not service nuclear armed s "in or from" Cuban bases.

Carcer officials in the in ligence community resist ting with reporters, but it views over several more with Federal officials deal daily with intellige matters, with men ret from intelligence careers with some on active duty dicate that President Ni and his chief advisers an ciate the need for high-gi intelligence and "consume" eagerly.
The community, for insta

has been providing the P: dent with exact statistics numbers, deployment characteristics of Soviet siles, nuclear submarines commented. "We don't give sent this supposed to provide the commented of t

Helms Said to Rate High 🐬

Sources close to the White House say that Mr. Nixon and his foreign-policy advisers -Mr. Kissinger and Secretary and his foreign-poney advisers

—Mr. Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers
and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird—respect the professional competence of Mr. Helms, who is 57 and is the first career head of the Central Intelligence Agency.
Appointed by President
Lyndon B. Johnson in June, 1966, Mr. Helms has been essentially apolitical. He is said to have brought professional ability to bear in "lowering the profile" of the agency, tightening discipline
and divesting it of many fringe activities that have aroused criticism in Congress and among the public. His standing with Congress and among the professionals is high.

According to White House high.

According to White House ources, President Nixon, sources, President Naon, backed by the Congressional leadership, recently offered Mr. Helms added authority to coordinate the activities of the other board members. He is reported to have declined.

A major problem, according to those who know the situation, is that while Mr. Helms