I want to express our appreciation for the opportunity to do so.

our team captain, indicated that our participation in this political-military exercise was well worth the effort and on several counts.

There was, of course, the direct benefit of the experience to the individuals and to the Agency. It brought together in a striking and surprisingly realistic manner the pressures and complexities of real crises. For example, it demonstrated: the importance of leadership and of its being understood by the opposition; the opportunities of military power and the constraints on its use; the need for an overview of the world situation and the effects of interaction.

We hope to be able to keep in touch with as its work progresses and are looking forward to the overall results.

Sincerely,
