COMMITTEE ON DOCUMENTATION

TASK TEAM I - CONTENT CONTROL

PROPOSED

USIB CONTENT CONTROL

CODE

Attachment
T/I/R-1
3 January 1966

FOREWORD

1. The proposed USIB Content Control Code is designed to indicate the substantive content of intelligence items in a concise manner. It is designed primarily to facilitate the dissemination of intelligence items.

2. A notation involves three elements:

a. Politico-Geographic Area(s)

b. Subject(s) and Subject Modifiers

c. Identifier(s). An identifier signals the presence in the text of a reference a specific individual, organization, installation conference, etc., by name; an equipment or vehicle identification number or label; a street or telegraphic address or other type nomenclature which may have intelligence value.

3. Each of these elements represents a major dimension in the organization of intelligence material. A coder must answer three separate questions when content controlling an item:

a. What locale(s) and/or nationalities are reported upon?

b. What subjects are discussed?

c. Are identifiers of potentially significant intelligence value mentioned? See description of identifiers (T/I/W-11).

4. The basic format for the USIB Content Control Code notation is as follows:

Area(s)/Subject(s)-Modifier(s)/Identifier(s)

The minimum entry consists of either Area/Subject/, or Area//Identifier. The slash marks are necessary and in the latter case the two slash marks must always be present to indicate the omission of a subject coding. A notation may have more than one area code, subject code, and/or more than one identifier. In these cases, commas will be used to separate area from area, subject from subject, and identifier from identifier. Modifiers are used when appropriate. A modifier is attached to the subject coding to which it relates by a hyphen. When two modifiers relate to the same subject, the second is attached to the first by a hyphen. Examples follow:

STAT

5. In general, the most specific area and/or subject should be used. In a notation containing more than one area code and more than one subject code, each area code must pertain logically to each subject code within the context of the report. More than one notation may be used if required. Modifiers must be used with subject categories whenever they logically pertain to them within the context of the report. See description of modifiers (T/I/W-10). If three or more subject codings are applicable, and if they all fall within the same Section of the Code, the general category for that Section should be used. An identifier need not be related to all areas and subjects indicated in the preceding portions of the notation.

PART A

Politico - Geographic Entities Listed Alphabetically by Conventional Name

NOTE: The contents and characteristics of the information entered in the respective columns is as follows:

Name. In this column the conventional name of the country or dependency as established by the Board on Geographic Names is entered. In the case of dependency the name of the political superior is entered in parentheses when it is not otherwise apparent.

Notation. In this column, a trigraph code is entered. The first character of the trigraph indicates world region as follows:

- A - Asia, Southeast
- B - Asia, South
- C - Far East (Asia, East)
- D - Near East (Asia, Southwest)
- E - Europe, Eastern
- F - Africa, North
- G - Africa, other than North
- H - America, Central
- I - West Indies
- J - America, South
- K - America, North
- L - Europe, Western
- M - Australia & New Zealand Area
- N - Land Masses in the Atlantic Ocean
- O - Land Masses in the Indian Ocean
- P - Land Masses in the Pacific Ocean
- R - Antarctica
- U - Soviet Union Area
- W - Worldwide
- X - Water Areas

The second and third characters in themselves are a unique digraph indicating country or dependency without reference to the first character.

Scope Notes and Cross References. Contain the official name of the country or dependency entered. Also name variants are entered here as well as cross referenced to this entry. Necessary or desirable inclusions or exclusions are entered here also. Instructions for particular code applications to minimize ambiguity appear where appropriate. See references and see also references by name and by trigraph code in parentheses appear as the last portion of this column.

POLITICO-GEOGRAPHIC AREAS OF THE WORLD

Work space has been provided under the heading Notation to place various coding representations which coincide with the entries appearing under Nomenclature and Scope and to enter proposed coding when it has been developed.

Under Nomenclature where part of a name is underlined the use of the non-underlined part should be considered optional. Certain entries are modified, within parentheses, to indicate political divisions between geographic entities, e.g., Leeward Islands (France) and Leeward Islands (United Kingdom). Also, where geographic separation of elements of a political entity is entered following a dash e.g., Hawaii-USA, Azores-Portugal, Canary Islands-Spain.

Dependency, affiliation, etc. is indicated under Scope by an entry of the name of the political superior in parentheses, e.g., Andaman and Nicobar Islands (India) or Angola, including Cabinda (Portugal).

T/I/W-2
24 March 1965

POLITICO-GEOGRAPHIC AREAS OF THE WORLD

1. The attached politico-geographic structure for the world area was developed after research and study of the following extant systems of representing and coding areas of the world:

a. Area classification system of the USIB-sponsored Intelligence Subject Code (ISC);

b. Geo-political codes for Intelligence Systems developed by DIA which is compatible with the DoD Standard Geographic Code for use in Command and Control;

c. Country abbreviations incorporated in the Department of State Records Classification Handbook;

d. Names of Selected Major Political Areas of the world prepared by the Board of Geographic Names of the Department of the Interior;

e. Several other pertinent systems of apportioning and representing the world area.

2. These systems were examined in detail to identify requirements stated or implied by their characteristics. These characteristics were also examined from the standpoint of responsiveness to design requirements of an area content control scheme. In many cases, variations in nomenclature and/or scope exist in the systems examined. For example, there exist three "definable", though not mutually exclusive, entities on the southeastern tip of the Arabian Peninsula. They are: (1) Aden Colony, (2) Aden Protectorate, now called Protectorate of South Arabia and (3) Federation of South Arabia, which is made up of Aden Colony, certain sheikdoms in the Protectorate of South Arabia and the island sheikdom of Socotra, off the east coast of Africa. The following representations of the entities occur in the systems examined:

Aden Colony

ISC - none

DIA - Aden, including Kamaran Is., Perim Is.

State - Aden Colony and Protectorate

BGN - Aden: dependent political entity.

Aden Protectorate (Protectorate of South Arabia)

ISC - None

DIA - None
State - Aden Colony and Protectorate
BGN - Aden and the Protectorate of South Arabia: semi-independent political entity

Federation of South Arabia

ISC - Aden Federation (Arab Emirates of the South)
DIA - None
State - None
BGN - South Arabia, Federation of ; semi-independent political entity

Socotra

ISC - Socotra Island
DIA - Socotra Island
State - Socotra Island (Aden)
BGN - None

3. The foregoing is admittedly a most extreme case. It begs for an easy way out - call them all "Aden" or "Federation of South Arabia" or something. However, it was felt that resolution should provide political and geographic definition which would be missing from an aggregation under the title Aden or Federation of South Arabia. It also seemed desirable to retain the primacy of the United Kingdom political role and to treat the Federation as a subset thereof.

4. The proposed solution in this case was to create two main entries:

a. Aden Colony including Kamaran, Kuria Muria, and Perim Islands (United Kingdom)

b. South Arabia, Protectorate of. (United Kingdom)
An additional "see/see also" entry is provided as follows:
South Arabia, Federation of. See Aden Colony. See also South Arabia, Protectorate, See also Socotra Island. It is noteworthy that while Aden Colony and the Sheikdom of Socotra, are members of the Federation, only 13 of the 19 sheikdoms comprising the Protectorate of South Arabia are members. The remaining 6 sheikdoms constitute the noise to signal ratio or the false correlation potential of the proposed resolution. The same ratio or potential would exist, however, if we "called 'em all Federation":

5. In view of the implicit requirement for definition indicated by the systems examined, the decision was made to resolve the problem with two main entries and the see/see also entry rather than to aggregate them under South Arabia, Federation of.

6. Having described in some detail, the most difficult problem encountered, it is only fair to point out large areas of agreement as to nomenclature and scope on which exists between those systems and between them and the proposed resolution. Out of a total of approximately 2905 entries, only 159 of the 1001 are in substantial agreement. The balance is primarily caused by different inclusion/exclusion of non-contiguous areas in association with the politico-geographic entry. These appear susceptible to rational resolution hopefully somewhat as proposed in the following listing.

POLITICO-GEOGRAPHIC AREAS OF THE WORLD

1. The attached politico-geographic structure for the world area was developed after research and study of the following extant systems of representing and coding areas of the world:

a. Area classification system of the USIB-sponsored Intelligence Subject Code (ISC);

b. Geo-political codes for Intelligence Systems developed by DIA which is compatible with the DoD Standard Geographic Code for use in Command and Control;

c. Country abbreviations incorporated in the Department of State Records Classification Handbook;

d. Names of Selected Major Political Areas of the world prepared by the Board of Geographic Names of the Department of the Interior;

e. Several other pertinent systems of apportioning and representing the world area.

2. These systems were examined in detail to identify requirements stated or implied by their characteristics. These characteristics were also examined from the standpoint of responsiveness to design requirements of an area content control scheme. In many cases, variations in nomenclature and/or scope exist in the systems examined. For example, there exist three "definable", though not mutually exclusive, entities on the southeastern tip of the Arabian Peninsula. They are: (1) Aden Colony, (2) Aden Protectorate, now called Protectorate of South Arabia and (3) Federation of South Arabia, which is made up of Aden Colony, certain sheikdoms in the Protectorate of South Arabia and the island sheikdom of Socotra, off the east coast of Africa. The following representations of the entities occur in the systems examined:

Aden Colony

ISC - none

DIA - Aden, including Kamaran Is., Perim Is.

State - Aden Colony and Protectorate

BGN - Aden: dependent political entity.

Aden Protectorate (Protectorate of South Arabia)

ISC - None

DIA - None

State - Aden Colony and Protectorate

BGN - Aden and the Protectorate of South Arabia: semi-independent political entity

Federation of South Arabia

ISC - Aden Federation (Arab Emirates of the South)

DIA - None

State - None

BGN - South Arabia, Federation of : semi-independent political entity

Socotra

ISC - Socotra Island

DIA - Socotra Island

State - Socotra Island (Aden)

BGN - None

3. The foregoing is admittedly a most extreme case. It begs for an easy way out - call them all "Aden" or "Federation of South Arabia" or something. However, it was felt that resolution should provide political and geographic definition which would be missing from an aggregation under the title Aden or Federation of South Arabia. It also seemed desirable to retain the primacy of the United Kingdom political role and to treat the Federation as a subset thereof.

4. The proposed solution in this case was to create two main entries:

a. Aden Colony including Kamaran, Kuria Muria, and Perim Islands (United Kingdom)

b. South Arabia, Protectorate of. (United Kingdom)

see
An additional "see/see also" entry is provided as follows: South Arabia, Federation of. See Aden Colony. See also South Arabia, Protectorate, See also Socotra Island. It is noteworthy that while Aden Colony and the Sheikdom of Socotra, are members of the Federation, only 13 of the 19 sheikdoms comprising the Protectorate of South Arabia are members. The remaining 6 sheikdoms constitute the noise to signal ratio or the false correlation potential of the proposed resolution. The same ratio or potential would exist, however, if we "called 'em all Federation".

5. In view of the implicit requirement for definition indicated by the systems examined, the decision was made to resolve the problem with two main entries and the see/see also entry rather than to aggregate them under South Arabia, Federation of.

6. Having described in some detail, the most difficult problem encountered, it is only fair to point out large areas of agreement as to nomenclature and scope which exists between these systems and between them and the proposed resolution. Out of a total of 100 systems, 2005/04/13; CIA-RDP80B01139A000400110001-7

in substantial agreement. The balance is primarily caused by different inclusion/exclusion of non-contiguous areas in association with the politico-geographic entry. These appear susceptible to rational resolution hopefully somewhat as proposed in the following listing.

occur, the political superior

POLITICO-GEOGRAPHIC AREAS OF THE WORLD

Work space has been provided under the heading Notation to place various coding representations which coincide with the entries appearing under Nomenclature and Scope and to enter proposed coding when it has been developed.

Under Nomenclature where part of a name is underlined the use of the non-underlined part should be considered optional. Certain entries are modified, within parentheses, to indicate political divisions between geographic entities, e.g., Leeward Islands (France) and Leeward Islands (United Kingdom). Also, where geographic separation of elements of a political entity is entered following a dash e.g., Hawaii-USA, Azores-Portugal, Canary Islands-Spain,

Dependency, affiliation, etc. is indicated under Scope by an entering ~~entry~~ of the name of the political superior in parentheses, e.g., Andaman and Nicobar Islands (India) or Angola, including Cabinda (Portugal). Other clarifying information is placed within brackets [] e.g. Uganda [federated state], Swallow [Spitzbergen] Mauritius [Mauritius Islands]

Other clarifying information is placed within brackets [] e.g. Lybia [Libyan Arab Republic], Vietnam [North], Democratic Republic of, or Ireland [Eire], Republic of*
