NOTE FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

Drew Middleton called to invite you to come by his apartment in New York after your speech to the Council on Foreign Relations, 5 October. I explained you would be leaving the city for Atlanta right after the talk and thus it would not be possible.

Drew said he understood but wanted you to know he had extended the invitation and hopes you can make it next time.

Dear Stan:

Your appearance on "Face the Nation" yesterday once again whetted my appetite. Could we firm up a date to have you visit the Council sometime next October-November so that we could have a date reserved on both of our calendars?

The formulating of a subject and other logistics we can leave until a later date.

Sincerely,

Zygmunt Nagorski

Dear Stan:

Following on our earlier correspondence, I want to explore with you an idea which I hope you will find acceptable.

Every year during the Christmas college vacation, the Council holds a meeting to which members may bring their college age sons and daughters. The purpose is to expose young people to the kind of intellectual climate which exists at the Council. It also gives them access to people they usually do not have the opportunity to meet. The thought occurred to me that in view of the crisis in confidence which has developed over the years between younger Americans and the intelligence community, you might want to be our annual speaker for the occasion. A topic related to the role of intelligence in an open society would perhaps be an appropriate one for the meeting.

Please let me know if you would consider this invitation favorably. This meeting is usually held during the last week in December.

With kind regards,

Sincerely,

Zygmunt
