Preliminary

The DCI, Mr. Colby, was present for a few minutes at the beginning of the meeting. Since he recognized most of the Committee members from the recent awards ceremony for [ ] and [ ] there was no need for individual introductions. The Director expressed his appreciation for the past work of the Committee, commenting that it had been one of the more effective committees and had contributed measureably to the protection of our national security. In closing, he exhorted the Committee to continue its good work.

5. Reports by Members

(a) The Chairman reported on a two-hour session at Department of State with Norvell Jones, Chief Counsel of the Congressional sub-committee on surveillance. Jones stated his interest in the physical and technical surveillance of Americans in the United States and abroad. His specific questions, however, ranged to surveillance of foreigners in the US and to national security leaks. The Chairman commented that Mr. Jones appeared to be on a "fishing" expedition and recommended that the TSCC maintain a low profile, even though the Committee, being primarily interested in defensive measures, would probably not be bothered.

(b) The Chairman reported briefly on the present state of DCID 1/11 which delineates the future staffing and responsibilities of the TSCC. The draft directive is still in the Security Committee, held up by intra-CIA problems with disposition of certain of the directive's responsibilities.
