From all reports, Part I of the Summer Program went extremely well, and I have heard, too, that you yourself came away well pleased with it.

I want to thank you for all the thought and effort you devoted to the formulation and preparation of this program and to tell you how much I feel this and your prominent participation in the program itself contributed to the success of the Seminar. You assembled a remarkably talented yet diversified group of speakers, and I know that it was through your personal efforts that these exceptionally qualified men were persuaded to lecture at the Seminar.
