WASHINGTON SCENE

By GEORGE DIXON

A GENTLEMAN who has written about Latin America as any Norteamericano alive was called into consultation by Secretary of State Marshall the other day. He told our boss diplomat flatly that an undeclared war is on the defensive. We are fighting a rear-guard action."

against the United States is raging down there.

The gentleman is neither a professional warrior nor a professional diplomat, but he is a trained observer of political and economic trends.

He is the Rev. Joseph F. Thorning, professor of sociology at Catholic University in Santiago de Chile, and advisory editor of "The Americas," a publication widely circulated through Central and South America.

He has also taught in the University of San Marcos, in Lima, Peru, and the Central University of Ecuador, in Quito. In addition he has delivered lectures in practically every Latin American center large enough to boast a lecture hall.

THE FIRST time I ever met Father Thorning he was having lunch in the House Restaurant with Clare Boothe Luce. He tries to change the subject whenever it comes up but it was not long after his conversations with Mrs. Luce that she announced her decision to embrace Catholicism.

I was brought up a hard-shell Baptist, and have every intention of remaining same, but I go for Father Thorning hook, line and sinker. He is one of the most forthright men of the cloth I have ever known.

General Marshall found him the same way because he pulled no punches in telling the Secretary of State that this country is going to lose out completely in Latin America unless it wakes up.

"The Red Fascists have launched an undeclared war," he said. "They are out to give us the business."

Father Thorning is not only a busy minister, mining us everywhere in Latin America.

"In cultural affairs," he declared, "they have

FATHER THORNING said we've got to find some way, and find it fast, to demolish their propaganda. We've got to fight their lies with forceful truth.

"One of their great weapons," he said, "is unspoken deception. For instance, there was a celebration of book week in Havana recently. The biggest display of books was by the Soviet Union.

"The author most touted was Maxim Gorky. The Reds had huge photographs of Gorky alongside Stalin and Molotoff, implying that they were ideological and cultural pals.

"The truth, of course, is that Gorky did his work under the Czar. He was never a Nazi-minded follower of Karl Marx."

FATHER THORNING said the truth, if it could be gotten over, would wreck communism in Latin America.

"Communism," he said, "has never bettered the lot of the people anywhere in the world. If we could only make people understand that!"

INCIDENTALLY, Congress has invited Father Thorning to deliver the invocation at the official celebration of Pan-American Day on Capitol Hill April 14. We'll probably be hearing squawks from a lot of the Communist fronts.

A MAIDEN lady from Peru, Ind., named Miss India Shearer, was at the Shoreham the other evening listening to the classical offerings of Barnee, the old maestro, and his symphonic hirelings.

She requested a rendition of "Doing What Comes Naturally" in which Mr. Paul Dawson gets off verses not in the original lyrics. Barnee took a very heroic stance and announced:

"We dedicate the next number to India!"

Well, do you know a group of Britishers seated at a ringside table grabbed the old maestro later and accused him of deliberately trying to stir up trouble within the Empire!

INCIDENTALLY, Miss India is a sister-in-law of football's famous Dutch Bergman. But she is very respectable nevertheless.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN DAVIS LODGE, of Connecticut, was at a dinner party in the elegant 1925 F Street club and excited the curiosity of the lady on his right. She said she had heard so much about him, his career in the movies, etc., and was just dying to know more.

The handsome Mr. Lodge told her to fire away with questions and he would answer any within reason.

"Well," said the lady, "I want to know where you are from?"

"That's easy," grinned Mr. Lodge. "I am from Connecticut, but before that I was from Boston. But actually I am from right here."

He looked around, his brow suddenly furrowing.

"As a matter of fact," he blurted finally, "I think I was born in this very house."

"You certainly were," cut in the hostess. "This club used to be the home of your grandfather, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge!"
